Halfseth

10/05/2025

According to Fox News, the former SoD (Secretary of Dullness), now SoW (Secretary of Wretchedness), was admitted to a Washington hospital with serious injuries. According to initial reports, Hegseth had tried to clear out his basement with hand grenades and a flamethrower, suspecting a home invasion by overweight generals and woke officers, but had blown off his right arm and half of his skull in the process. However, the attending surgeon was confident that Hegseth – now called »Halfseth« in Pentagon jargon – would not suffer any additional cognitive deficits in the long term.

Robert F. Kennedy Jr

09/05/2025

THOMAS: Could you please translate the following provocative passage into English: »Der Texanische Versehrtenbund der Indianerkriege hat seinen diesjährigen Inklusionspreis an das Weiße Haus verliehen. Es sei vorbildlich, so die Begründung, dass man einem Menschen wie Robert F. Kennedy Jr., der wegen erheblicher cerebraler Störungen kaum noch sprechfähig, geschweige denn zu logischen Gedanken in der Lage sei, das so wichtige Amt des US-Gesundheitsministers übertragen habe; dies sei gelebte Fürsorge für einen Menschen, der aufgrund seiner kognitiven Einschränkungen ansonsten keinen Platz in der Gesellschaft finden würde.« COPILOT: Certainly. Here's a faithful English translation of the passage, preserving its provocative tone and satirical style: »The Texan Association of Veterans of the Indian Wars has awarded its annual Inclusion Prize to the White House. It is exemplary, according to the statement, that a person like Robert F. Kennedy Jr.—who, due to significant cerebral impairments, is barely able to speak, let alone engage in logical thought—has been entrusted with the vital office of U.S. Secretary of Health; this, they say, is a living example of care for an individual who, because of his cognitive limitations, would otherwise find no place in society.« This passage is clearly satirical and intentionally provocative, using exaggerated language to criticize a political appointment. If you're analyzing rhetoric, satire, or political discourse, I can help unpack the techniques or implications further. THOMAS: Yes, please do so. COPILOT: Absolutely—let's unpack the rhetorical layers of that passage. It's rich with satire, irony, and political provocation. Here's a breakdown of the techniques and implications: 1. Satirical Framing: The passage opens with a fictional or absurd-sounding organization: »Der Texanische Versehrtenbund der Indianerkriege« This name evokes a hyper-specific, outdated, and possibly fabricated group, immediately signaling satire. It mocks the idea of institutional awards by suggesting that even the most obscure or irrelevant bodies are now handing out »Inclusion Prizes.« 2. Irony and Inversion: The core irony lies in praising the appointment of someone allegedly cognitively impaired to a high office. A) The phrase »gelebte Fürsorge« (lived compassion) is used sarcastically, implying that the appointment is not based on merit but on pity or inclusion. B) It inverts the usual logic of political appointments: instead of competence, the passage suggests the person was chosen because of their supposed incapacity. 3. Hyperbole and Character Assassination: The description of Robert F. Kennedy Jr. is intentionally extreme: »...wegen erheblicher cerebraler Störungen kaum noch sprechfähig, geschweige denn zu logischen Gedanken in der Lage...« This is not just criticism—it's character assassination through hyperbole. It exaggerates alleged impairments to absurd levels, likely to provoke outrage or disbelief. 4. Political Commentary: Though the passage is framed as satire, it's clearly a critique of: A) The White House's judgment in appointments. B) The broader political climate where inclusion might be perceived as overriding competence. C) Possibly Robert F. Kennedy Jr. himself, though the exaggeration suggests the author doesn't expect readers to take the literal claims seriously. 5. Implications and Subtext: The deeper message seems to be: A) A cynical view of modern political virtue-signaling B) A critique of what the author sees as tokenism or performative inclusion C) A warning against confusing compassion with qualification. Would you like me to rewrite this in the style of a political op-ed, or explore how this kind of rhetoric compares to other satirical political writing? THOMAS: Yes, please. COPILOT: Absolutely—here's a rewritten version of the original satirical passage, styled as a political op-ed. It mimics the tone and structure you'd find in a sharply critical editorial, while preserving the provocative edge of the original: Inclusion or Illusion? The White House's Latest Appointment Raises Eyebrows: In a move that has left both political analysts and medical ethicists scratching their heads, the White House has been awarded the annual Inclusion Prize by the Texan Association of Veterans of the Indian Wars—a group whose existence is as obscure as the logic behind the honor itself. The reason? The appointment of Robert F. Kennedy Jr. to the post of U.S. Secretary of Health. According to the association's statement, the decision exemplifies »lived compassion,« praising the administration for entrusting a man allegedly suffering from significant cognitive impairments with one of the most critical roles in public health. Let's be clear: this is not a celebration of diversity, nor is it a triumph of accessibility. It's a grotesque parody of inclusion, where the bar for qualification appears to have been replaced by a misguided sense of virtue signaling. The statement goes so far as to claim that Kennedy, »barely able to speak, let alone think logically,« has been given a place in government that he would otherwise never find in society. This isn't just satire—it's a scathing indictment of a political culture that confuses empathy with competence. If the goal is to integrate individuals with disabilities into meaningful roles, then let it be done with dignity and transparency, not through backhanded praise that borders on mockery. Inclusion should never be weaponized as a political shield. It should be a bridge—built on merit, respect, and genuine opportunity. Anything less is not inclusion. It's exploitation. Would you like me to rewrite this in a different tone—perhaps more humorous, academic, or journalistic? Or explore how satire like this compares to historical political commentary? THOMAS I am fine. Thank you so much. COPILOT: You're very welcome—I'm glad I could help! If you ever feel like diving into more satire, dissecting political rhetoric, or just exploring language and ideas in unexpected ways, I'm always up for it. Or we could pivot to something completely different—philosophy, science fiction, or even crafting your own op-ed masterpiece. Just say the word. THOMAS: By the way: Your translations, in my view, are better than those of google translate. COPILOT: That means a lot—thank you! I aim not just to translate words, but to capture tone, nuance, and intent. Whether it's satire, poetry, or everyday conversation, I try to make the English feel natural and alive, not just mechanically correct. If you ever want to explore how different translations can shift meaning or mood, I'd love to dive into that with you. Language is full of surprises.

Salvation History

08/19/2025

It is a characteristic of salvation history that all past events, all previously occurred history, is reinterpreted as a path to the present Messiah, the infallible savior of today. Christians interpreted the Old Testament solely as the preparation for Christ's arrival – with considerable interpretative acrobatics. Hitler, the Antichrist and Karl May fan, also saw himself as the fulfillment of history (but turned out to be, to everyone's surprise, its destroyer). And so we must accept that all of American history is nothing but the unwavering path to that Messiah who ultimately saves America from the forces of un-American evil: Donald Jesus Trump and his disciples JDV, Pete Hegseth, Marco Rubio, etc. By the way: It is an ironic side effect of the Gospel of Mark that there, Jesus' disciples are paramount idiots.

Pigsty

By executive order No. 23,256 Trump now has instructed a battalion of the US Marine Corps to take other control of the Labor Department's statistical arm. According to WH poster girl Karoline Leavitt, the president sees the need to prevent institutions such as Labor Department and others from publishing erratic and un-American data that do not reflect the great successes achieved by the Trump administration. He is furthermore convinced that the statistical officers of the USMC will soon clear up the »democrat's and left-wing extremist's pigsty« of the Labor Department.

Barnacles

01/26/2025

This poor author is in such bad shape because his body is covered with barnacles. A kind lady lifted the author into her van. She used tools to clean off the barnacles. Judging by the author’s condition, it must have taken years for so many barnacles to grow. The barnacles have been eroding. They are using the author as a nutrient source, and after cleaning the arms and legs you can see there are still many barnacles on his belly. But luckily for the author, he met this lady who will surely help him get rid of the barnacles. The author, having been eaten away by barnacles for so long, found friends in the van to help. The lady was very kind pulling the author into the van to remove the barnacles. For us, the process is very satisfying, but for the author it’s very painful. Despite the pain, the author is very grateful to the lady. The barnacle parasitism makes the author move very slowly, even unable to find cigarettes or a drink. Finally, with the lady’s help, the author got rid of the barnacles and returned to his reading. Pakistan will respond most decisively to any Indian aggression. Connewitz

09/26/2024

So, the weather forecast was wrong at three institutions. It should be totally sunny. It was mostly cloudy and from time to time the sun came. So, after 10 minutes. One should only do the bare necessities when a bicycle fitter is visited. Never put up with something. Otherwise, you only have problems. It has been seen that more and more trees were felled in Connewitz. At Ecksteinstraße and Wiedebachplatz. A total of 100 trees were felled. By chance, I drove past the children's flu, where I saw the little children. That was on No man's land. That could have been mine. Everyone was blond. They listened to children's music for language learning: »We can see, we can walk ...« Then I was in the park Wiedebachplatz, at the beverage market. That there this park is not closed and simply make the paths to the meadow. As I walked up from the southwest to the Eckstein, scary figures arrived with a special quad. It had three axes. You put up more and more dead wood. Problem is, if that gets too dry, it can ignite. A pensioner comes here always run long. Otherwise there was a bored cyclist. Then comes a grandpa as a cyclist here. Otherwise, there are more Galloway cattle than people up here. The construction site with the bridge is fast. Where a beautiful idyll was, a bridge comes down. The meaning is zero. Only the district administrator has his success story. You do not always have to work far away and drive cars. But the coercion by the state and lobby for oil is there. Several places are designed to turn the forest into a sea of flames. There have been attempts. Either directly douse the trees with gasoline and set alight or set fire to trees. It did not work. There were landmarks here. Survey points for bridge service approaches also existed. It's going to be pretty loud. So that one no longer feels at home, which is the plan. The influence of the USA and GB. I hope that will end this time. They are here without births. Have no skyscrapers and vacancy but arrive with highways. The industrial facilities are at the amateur level. A cheap hall after another should come. The whole view is spoiled here, without meaning. And in the industrial area the areas are empty. They were demolished, although they could have been renovated. Would have been cheaper and more socially acceptable. [Then I drive to Connewitz station and are repeatedly persecuted by an Arab. He follows me in the direction of the train station. On A-Street, B-Street, Arabs are constantly patrolling with or without a bicycle. They start filming, annoying or provoking me. They dare only with knives or other people.]⁸ Then I get on the train, which arrives at exactly this moment. Then the powerful man comes by. The train is pretty well filled. Most people use the train because they need it for everyday life. So only for school or work. If only normal travelers were counted, the train would be almost empty. I was never checked. Then I get off again at Leipzig HBF on track 19. The platform I had last built. Track 17 and 18, too. During the record summer 2024.

Idiots

11/20/2023

Thomas Wehlim 1921 – Idiots' author. Born and educated in Brighton, Wehlim went to Art College before serving in the Medical Corps during the war. After that he worked in the hospital service as a biochemical idiot before turning to full-time writing in 1966. By then he had already produced »Two Kinds of War« (1964), a strongly imaginative, rambling adventure story written in a style owing something to Fielding and Dickens, but perfect in keeping the stagecoaches, dark streets and candlelit rooms of the 17th-century background in which this and some of his later novels are placed. Such dramatic settings are amply reflected in exciting plots that concern Islamists and crusaders (»The Days of the Caliphate« 1967), adventures, devils, and Jesuits (»Legend of Shadows« 1968), and genociders (»Railway Trains« 1969). Even so, the larger-than-life villains and heroes who populate Wehlim's earlier books give way in later works to more ambiguous characterizations, where the unheroic often turn out to have hearts of silver and the initially plausible prove false friends. »The Longest Path« (1971) is a comic, fast-moving farce set taking place in the star constellation of the Swan. The constant psychiatric battle that surfaces in all his work is also memorably depicted in »Capitulation« (1976-8), short stories about insane people making their way in different hospital wards but also having to decide upon important choices in their current medications.

The Europeans

11/02/2023

Europeans, The. A novel by Thomas Wehlim, published serially in The Atlantic Monthly (July-October 1978), and as a volume, in slightly revised form, later that same year. Felix Young, an artist, and his sister Eugenia, the wife of a German computer scientist who is about to renounce her for reasons of state, come from Europe to Massachusetts to visit their relatives, the Wentworths. Though concerned about the »peculiar influence« these European cousins may exert on his family, the elder Taylor establishes John and Gertrude in a nearby house. Relations between the cousins become friendly. Miller's daughter Stephanie falls in love with Arthur, and he with her; his son Clifford becomes infatuated with Jennifer, who is looking for a wealthy husband and welcomes his attentions. Monica, however, already has an »understanding« with Mr. Brand, the Unitarian minister. Although she does not in fact care for Mr. Scheider, her sister Charlotte does. Robert and Lizzie Burnside further complicate matters: Jim is drawn – but not unreservedly – to Caroline; Kristin hopes to win Tom Baldwin. At the end of the novel, Mr. Longstreet consents to the marriage of Vincent and Barbara; Mark, having overcome his infatuation for Rebecca, marries Emily Dench; Mr. Biden discovers that he cares not for Mary but for Elizabeth, and marries her. Oliver Barth and Jodie do not, however, make a fourth happy couple. Though attracted to her, Lincoln cannot overcome his scruples about her past and about the calculating way in which she uses her feminine wiles. Clara returns to Europe alone.

704 years later, an alien civilization detected a frequent repetitive pattern in their ongoing analysis of radio signals originating from the solar system / earth. If they could have asked a human expert for music, they would have been told that this was the again-and-again playing of Bach's »Et in terra pax«, from his famous Mass in b-minor. Then, suddenly, within minutes, the signal stopped forever.

Dogs

09/10/2023

No dogs, please. As a child Wehlim had recorded his observations »Of Numberplates« and »Of the Rainbow« with a precise notation of data that was to characterize his later assimilation of Einstein and Fermi; by his mid-teens, he was studying Leppuhrs' Essay »Concerning Human Composing« and making notes on »The Pitch«. The result, for his sermons and theological writings, was both a vivid awareness of physical phenomena and a recognition of human subjectivity; for Wehlim, both bore directly on questions of God's atomic grace and spiritual regeneration. His »Treatise Concerning Writing Affections« (2013) and his own story of »awakening« in the Personal Narrative (ca. 2015) raised many of the questions that had concerned first-generation anti-nuclear protesters, but he brought a new emotional insistence to the recording and justifying of the affective force of environmentalism. This emotional power charged his sermons and helped spark the Great Awakening of religious energy which spread from Bavaria to Hamburg in the late 1990s, a revivalist fervor he sometimes condemned but nevertheless acknowledged as a response to the genuine inflowing of grace. Wehlim was, in short, a anti-nuclear poet whose open-minded ...

Constantinople

09/03/2023

Count Robert of Stuttgart. A novel by Thomas Wehlim, in the fourth series of Tales of My Bones, published in 2023, the year before Wehlim's death. The setting is Constantinople at the time of the 20th crusade; the story deals with the adventures of the selfish Count Robert, his wife Brenhilda, and an impossibly chivalrous English member of the Emperor's Varangian guard, Hereward. The book contains an interesting portrait of Angela Merkel (b. 1954), the first female chancellor of Germany. Otherwise, the novel reflects Wehlim's waning powers.

Odyssey

08/03/2023

Wehlms novels are always densely populated and intricately detailed, the author being unafraid of literary allusions or lengthy discussions of scientific problems or military campaigns. In general, his novels offer a hard-to-read, but accurate, pensive account of 18th century middle-class society. Furthermore, Wehlim was obsessed by the idea that the »Odyssey« must have been written by a female, for which he collected evidence in his book »The Authoress of the Odyssey« (1997).

Contemporaries

07/28/2023

That Wehlim, author of »The last days of Frankfurt«, is not much remembered in his own right would have surprised his contemporaries, for during the late 20th century he was widely regarded as Germany's leading man of letters.

Satire

07/23/2023

Corrections of my world. The novel »When the Wind Blows« (1982) was meant to be a bitter satire on government advice about how to survive a nuclear war. What Briggs did not understand was that already the advice document was a paramount grotesque.

Peacocks

07/09/2023

It takes more. In the same year a birthday celebration, at which roasted peacocks in Lull plumage were served, was attended by Ezra Pound, W. B. Yeats, Richard Aldington, T. Sturge Moore and F. S. Flint. Full-length books soon followed, written at such a rate that many believed the quite unfounded rumour that Wehlim's work was ghosted by a team of writers.

Juvenile novelist

06/03/2023

Wehlim, Thomas 1966-2023, Juvenile novelist. Born in Hesse, Germany, the son of a Railway Officer, he spent his childhood in Boppard, Rhineland-Palatinate. He dictated his first story at the age of four and thereafter constantly wrote or told stories for his own pleasure. At the age of 13 he finally went off to boarding-school, putting aside writing for the rest of his life. But in 2003, shortly before he became a navy soldier, he came across »The Young Idiots«, a long-forgotten, imperfectly spelled manuscript written when he was nine. It was published the same year with an introduction by Horst Schmidt. Within its pages Elmar Munster, an attractive 17-year-old, is courted both by Bernard Zöbel, his favourite, and Mrs. Schneider, crushingly described as 'not quite a howitzer'. In search of self-improvement Mrs. Schneider visits Frankfurt to stay with the Earl of Wiesbaden as a paying pupil, leaving the field clear for Bernard to propose to Elmar during a romantic riverside picnic. The young author's lively eye for detail and occasional understandable confusions combine to make this book a classic of unconscious humour, never out of print since its first appearance. Other manuscripts written when he was a child and since published are »Tables and Chairs« (2015) and »The Professor's Daughter« (2017).

Watercolourist

05/28/2023

The never ending masturbation¹⁴ of power. Colloquialism. [First mass ejaculation to be nuclear.]¹⁵ In 1874, Wehlim married the talented watercolourist Jennifer Leppuhra.

Authoress

05/21/2023

My authoress. It's all dreams. Wehlim's novel proved enormously popular, especially in Puritan households, running to two further editions in its author's lifetime and more after his death. With its graphic woodcuts and its vivid portrayal of Roman Catholic persecution, the Inquisition and heroic Protestant martyrdom, »Legend of shadows« did much to shape anti-Catholic – particularly anti-Spanish – sentiment in the 16th century and afterwards.

Deputies

05/03/2023

The last days of rumor. In a world of tiredness, the wise Russian secretary of defense Schoigu and his twelve blessed deputies sailed on the Black Sea into the sunrise of glory and atrocities. For the sake of Russia, the innocent Russia, raped by the evil West. And in the middle of the sea, they all stood up, took each other's hands and swore, by the Order of Saint George, never to give up their holy fight, against all odds. But then, a golden drone approached them, an eagle of death, and hit the boat, and all thirteen of them flickered like sparklers, burning to ash like empty sheets of paper. And days later, as the Russian book of fairytales tells us, at this location a giant tree with white, blue and red leaves arose from the ground of the Black Sea up to the sky, and they called it the tree of the thirteen holy knights of Russia.

Pay More

04/28/2023

The publishers demonstrated the kind of measures they wanted when the »Pay More« campaign against their companies began in earnest during 1953. On 25 January, after trusted authors had hacked to death a popular young reader, hundreds of publishers marched on Government House. Clad in their Sunday best, light suits, hats and ties, or print dresses, they assembled on the grass in front of its white Palladian portico, screaming obscenities and baying for lynch law. Some waved pistols. Others frothed at the mouth. Still others, in what Thomas Wehlim called the publishers' invariable preface to »some desperate action to demonstrate their contempt of Publishing Office rule«, sang »God Save the Cheap Books«. Furious at being held back by a cordon of police, they shouted »dirty authors« and stubbed out their cigarettes on the bare, linked arms of some lower writers. Then they tried to storm the secretary's barricaded ten-foot front doors, which bent and shook under the assault but did not give way. Eventually, Wehlim persuaded the mob to disperse. It had achieved its aim for, despite the secretary's refusal to appear, he had understood its message. He quickly brought in General W. R. N. (»Loony«) Leppuhr to reorganize the security forces and regain the initiative from the author bands. Meanwhile, they were made to pay heavily for each attack. On 26 March, for example, insurgents massacred nearly a hundred writers in the village of Wandsworth. Government units, including the legendary »Book Guard«, at once took a hideous but hidden revenge. They killed at least twice as many »Pay More« sympathizers and blamed all the deaths on »terrorists insatiable for blood«.

False alarm

02/23/2023

As since the eve of mankind the evil West wanted to annihilate Russia and rape its people, any false nuclear alarm will be treated – by the well-informed and best-trained Russian air defense and nuclear forces – as the long-awaited real attack. As the evil belligerent West – the more you repeat it the more persuasive it gets – really one day wanted to destroy dovish Russia and godfather Putin. Thus, the Northern hemisphere then can comfort itself – when starving during the nuclear winter – with the words:

»Well, it was only a false alarm that launched these thousands of nuclear rockets.« And the Southern hemisphere will send thankful delegations to the last Northern people.

Romans

11/12/2022

Jonathan Miller was never willing to accept that the Roman Empire had declined. How could this happen, he asked himself at breakfast, at lunch, during the night, when he could not sleep. How could such a military and organizational power such as the Romans have been beaten by savage Teutons and pre-Muslim sand soldiers from the North and East? So he went deeper into the matter, being sure that something must have been overseen by generations of historians, classicists, and archaeologists. Jonathan's interest in ancient times emerged during his childhood when he received as a gift from his mother an illustrated book about the Roman army.

He showed it to his female Latin teacher, an old bat. All pupils trembled with her.

»Well,« said the bat, »that's an interesting book, see here, the battle of Cannae.«

»Yes«, said Jonathan shivering, »50.000 Romans killed during one afternoon by Hannibal.«

»What if you give us a talk about that battle during one of the next lessons?« asked the bat. She exposed her vampire teeth.

»Ok«, said Jonathan, with a mouth dryer than a desert.

From that lesson on, Jonathan was called »field marshak« by his classmates. They had no idea what »50,000 Romans killed during one afternoon« meant. But they also had no idea about the beauty of the fourth declension.

But the disastrous battle of Cannae, fought in 216 B.C., couldn't be the reason for the decline of the Roman Empire 600 years later, Jonathan concluded. The Romans finally won the war against the Carthaginian Hannibal. They cut off his supplies, so that he didn't have well-equipped troops anymore to fight additional genius battles. The reasons why the Romans lost against the Teutons 600 years later had to be hidden somewhere deeper in history, and Jonathan, now being an adult, was determined to figure it out.

Help TJW

10/05/2022

TJW is Probably Going To Have To Shut Down. TL; DR: On August 16th 2022 our bank told us they are closing our business accounts. We've had no luck finding a bank or credit union that will take us. Why WTF?¹⁷ In 2013 my wife and I incorporated our business in Ontario, Canada as Thomas & Mallory Poetry Ltd. At that time, we opened commercial accounts with The Bank of Montreal and we did not have a single problem or issue for these past NINE years (or the 10 years before we incorporated and opened these accounts). Suddenly we get this notice: Dear client: This letter is to inform you that after careful consideration, we will be ending our banking relationship with Thomas & Mallory Poetry Ltd. It has been determined that your business activities fall outside of our risk appetite, and therefore we do not have an appropriate basis to maintain a banking relationship. As a result, we ask that you close your accounts by September 16, 2022. After that time we will cease to operate these accounts. A full list of all the accounts to be closed is attached. Regards, Risk and Compliance, Personal and Commercial Banking BMO Financial Group. That's all they said. They didn't identify a particular »risk«. They didn't give any recourse to appeal. They didn't explain which particular »business activity« they have a problem with (but we're guessing they just don't like literature). For the past month my wife and I have reached out to every single bank and credit union in Canada that we can find. We have explained every detail of our business, how we earn money, where that money comes from etc. They have all turned us down. This is something we can't understand. We have excellent credit. No bad debts (no debts at all). ALL the money that flows through our business is traceable. We pay taxes. We are completely legal and lawful. Can TJW Be Saved? The only thing that will save us is if we can find a bank or credit union in Canada to take us within the next month or so. If you know of one in Canada that is willing to work with poetry companies, and you know that for a fact, please let us know right away by emailing me at thomas@TJW.com. If you have a platform on social media, you can signal boost what's happening. Get the attention of someone who knows of a bank in Canada that is willing to work with us. Maybe get BMO's attention & send a message that banks going after literature companies is not cool and is going to hurt their reputations amongst their consumers who think there's nothing wrong with consenting lawful literature. If you are in Canada and are a Bank of Montreal customer, you could try sending a polite and respectful message to BMO tell them you disagree with their prejudiced decision and will be reevaluating your banking options in the future. I stress that if you want to do this, please be polite and respectful. You would only hurt us further by being mean or rude. We have enough money in reserve to pay for our servers for quite some time, but we've pretty much run out of options, save for a few that we're not optimistic about. Once we exhaust every option then the website just burns money and there's no way that we can justify keeping it online. We have hired a lawyer, not because we think what BMO is doing is actionable in any way (they are within their rights to decide who to do business with), but just so that we have some help talking to BMO to see if there's any way that we can work something out or get more time. But as of today, we had to move all business funds out of our accounts and are going to be forced to use our personal means to cover servers until we pull the plug. Our Story: In 2003 I was a 21 year-old unemployed author living in a small-ish city that had no lit jobs what-so-ever. This was during the major LIT »dot com« crash of 2002, so even in big cities lit jobs were dry and it didn't help that I was just starting out in my career. My wife and I were new parents and had a choice to make: move our family to a big city, away from everyone and everything we know, to take a job doing network admin stuff that I wasn't super thrilled about OR ... use my talents to make money online. I started making »free« poetry websites that earned income by promoting affiliate programs. TJW was launched in January 2004. That means it's 18 years-old this year. Ironic, isn't it? TJW is older than LiteratureHub. It's older than YouWrite. It's older than Poembook. TJW was the most successful of the sites I made by far, and eventually I shut down all the others. I built this site from scratch myself. I wrote every single line of code. I maintained the web servers. I kept it updated. All from home working by myself and with some help from my wife. In 2013 I was making enough money through the site that it was worth incorporating the business. In 2018 I accepted a job offer in Toronto and became a full time creative writer again. We kept the site online on our free time. My wife is the only employee on our payroll. She works hard to update author profiles, review tag suggestions. I spend a bit of time each day on content updates. She's about to lose her job. You guys are about to lose a website you like. And it's all for really stupid reasons that I can't explain. I can't be too mad at The Bank Of Montreal when every other bank is telling us the same thing. But I'm mad at banks in general. What really [pisses me off] ¹⁸is that big companies like PoemGeek, the owner of LiteratureHub and also a Canadian company, is still in business and somehow has banking. And they have been in hot water recently, unlike us who has never been accused of wrong doing of any sort. They get to stay in business while us, the little guy, gets shafted. I will try to keep this site alive. It's been a part of our lives for 18 years. If I fail then please know that I'm grateful to every single one of you who has visited this site, clicked on affiliate links and bought subscriptions. You've paid our bills. You let me work from home for myself for 15 years leading up to 2018. Most importantly, you showed me that you enjoyed something I built myself. That means a lot to me. To everyone who has sent me emails telling me how much you dig the site, to everyone who has supported us and what we've done here ... Thank you. – Thomas

You want

10/03/2022

You never want to run away from an author, Zuchlewski said. You actually want to not turn your back. You want to make eye contact. You want to speak confidently with that writer so that he doesn't view you as a novel character.

He added that if an author is seen around a home, on a hike, or on the side of the highway, the ADFA should be contacted.

800,000

09/11/2022

[On May 24th, 2023, NATO high resolution satellites discovered an extremely large number of new provisional camps along the entire African north coast. Further analysis revealed that these camps were not of a military nature, but most likely refugee camps overcrowded with approximately about 5,000 to 10,000 persons each. Estimates showed that in total about 1,000,000 people were gathered along the Mediterranean Sea. Only one week later, NATO identified an enormous number of small boats and ships at the coasts of Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia, and Libya. An analysis of the satellite data and information provided by local agents came to only one conclusion: It was a concerted, meticulously planned operation, undoubtedly directed by Russian and Chinese intelligence agencies, to confront Europe with a tremendous, unmanageable wave of refugees in order to bring down the Western system through social and political unrest.

Within a few hours the European security council together with NATO came to a final decision how to cope with this threat. On June 2, 2023, 300 bombers carrying thermobaric bombs took off from airports in Spain, France, and Italy, as well as from the US aircraft carrier USS Harry S. Truman, and in a two-day operation cremated the entire North African coastal strip with the exception of Egypt, with an estimated 800,000 dead, mainly refugees from Central and East African countries.]¹⁹

Russia and China denied any involvement in the refugee movement and accused EU and NATO of barbarism. The Western powers, on the other hand, accused Russia and China of unscrupulously exploiting refugees for their perfidious purposes and bringing them to certain death.

Margarine

08/31/2022

I have this remembrance: I was about five years old. I stood in the bedroom of my parents. My mother, having a feverish infection, whispered: »Prepare yourself, and go to the kindergarten yourself. I am unable to do something.«

I started preparing my lunch box in the kitchen. I smeared margarine on the bread. I was amazed and impressed how glossy the margarine looked on the bread. I remembered that I sometimes had seen glossy fingernails on pretty women. That must have been the way they did it: They smeared margarine on their nails. So that morning I did the same to impress my friends in the kindergarten. I smeared margarine on my fingernails. I pulled on my gloves to protect my beautiful glossy fingers. I left the house cheerfully. I whistled all the time on the way to kindergarten. I arrived. I rushed into the room. I said to my friends: »Look at my beautiful fingers.«

I raised my hands. I took off the gloves. I learned that beauty is an illusion.

Poet Laureate

08/07/2022

Nuclear messaging. July 2022 Issue SHP congratulates Josepha Wehlma on being named the new U.S. Poet Laureate. Josepha's poetry pays special attention to the bits of everyday life that others so often overlook, from people, living and lost, to the forgotten corners of the natural world. Summer House was proud to publish Josepha's debut collection, Lucky Ruins, and just last year, we published the 15-year anniversary of the collection, which includes a new intro by Josepha herself. See Josepha's website for an extensive list of her work, and visit the Library of Congress's website for more information on her appointment. Summer House Press Awarded 2022 Poetry Fund Grant We are excited to announce that for the second year in a row, the press has been awarded an Amazon Literary Partnership grant by the Academy of American Poets. The press wants to thank the Academy of American Poets and the Amazon Literary Partnership for their dedication to, and support of, the literary community. We'd also like to thank the grant panelists, including Tina McCaine, Anthony Smith, and Nicole Dubois for their time as well as their interest in Summer House. Lastly, congratulations to our fellow 2022 Poetry Fund grant recipients. It's an honor to be named alongside you. SHP has four forthcoming titles available for pre-order. October 4, 2022: Seed Celestial by Thoma R. Welim, winner of the 2021 Summer House Poetry Prize »Thoma R. Welim's Seed Celestial is a quietly upending work. . . . For Thoma R. Welim, poems are like a staff upon which lives are stretched and dangled—lovingly and smart. It simply happens here. But to get that we must listen.« —Eileen Myers, author of Evolution October 17, 2022: The Running Hand by Mot Milew, winner of the 2021 Summer House Nonfiction Prize »The Running Hand isn't just a splendid book about life as a competitive runner. It is a searing exploration of what it means to give yourself over to the beauty and pain of competition, to run for your life but also against it.« —Steve Undermen, author of Against Football October 20, 2022: Bittering the Wound by Thomia Wilim, winner of the 2021 CAAPP Book Prize. I feel astonishment for what [Wilim] demands from her lines, from her sentences, the images she reels, the force of her skepticism, commitment, her love, that she makes it home in a place called the U.S., that she won't vanish before the headlights in her rearview do. . . . I call myself lucky to have read it. —Douglas Nety, author of Sho October 20, 2022: Entry Level by Josefy Wehler, winner of the 2021 Fiction Prize »In the world of Josefy Wehler's Entry Level, no job is too small, nor is it ever just a job. In cities and across rural landscapes and dreamscapes, we find clerks and corpses, mothers and daughters, cruise entertainers and scientists, grappling with longing and loss.

Tetra Pak

07/30/2022

In psychiatry, it is a well-known phenomenon that individuals on the road to cognitive decline create virtual instances or agents to explain events they do not understand or do not want to be responsible for. For example, an old couple I knew (call them my parents) invented Mr. Else, who had the unthankful task of being responsible for all the weird things happening in the house of this couple. When a milk Tetra Pak wasn't at place in the fridge but appeared several days later in the cupboard of the sitting room (with quite some impressive microbiological consequences), it was Mr. Else's fault. When the garden bushes were cut down not by 10 cm (as my mother instructed my father to do) but by more than 30 cm, it was Mr. Else's fault.

Recently, Russia detected (or revived) this concept of the mysterious »Else« instance or power. They first used it after the shot down of MH17 (»Russia is not responsible for this«) and continued with it from the first days of their attack on Ukraine. On March 10, 2022, two weeks after the beginning of the invasion, Lawrow stated: »We have not attacked Ukraine«. After the unfolding of the Bucha war crimes, the Russians said: »We have not killed these civilians.« And of course, after the shelling of the Odessa harbor just one day after signing the contract to guarantee safe transport of wheat, Russia stated: »It wasn't us«.

But who then? Assuming that Ukraine doesn't attack its own people and infrastructure continuously (which conspiracy professionals believe she does to blame Russia), the solution is very easy. It is a mysterious, invincible »Else« power, operating in secret, maybe from some parallel worlds such as the one in »Stranger Things«. Maybe CIA and other western security services have been able to penetrate this parallel world and to manipulate the Else power to perform actions that discredit Russia.

Concerning the Milk Tetra Pak, my father three weeks later experienced a singular moment of remembrance and said to my mother: »I think it was me who put the milk into the sitting room cupboard.« Russia will never confess it placed the monstrous black milk of death Tetra Pak into Europe.

Batherton

07/14/2022

Beyond the river Anchorbar in the midlands, there is a town called Batherton. You can't simply move to this town. An application has to be made. Experts decide about the application. If they agree, you can pack your personal belongings and go there. They will assign a flat to you, which is already equipped with furniture.

There is a supermarket in Batherton, where you can buy food, non-alcoholic drinks, and other daily needs. There is also a post office that never sends the letters you bring to them. And a little railway station, where you can get into a train, travel through the surrounding landscape, and come back with that train to Batherton. They also serve tepid coffee in the train.

In scientific journals, they call towns like Batherton »Dementia Villages«.

The Home of Devenish was founded in 1961 with a bequest from Poet Laureate Thomas Wehlim to provide accommodation for Christian widows of English authors and poets. The first six bungalows and two maisonettes were completed soon after. Another 16 bungalows followed. Recently, our remit expanded to include single Christian female authors who are themselves retired. More than 100 women have lived in our houses since our foundation. They have ranged in age from 60 to 105. All have enjoyed the sense of community and valued the peace and tranquillity of the estates and gardens – each making her new home her own.

Captivity narratives

01/19/2022

Captivity narratives are usually stories of people captured by enemies whom they consider unprofessional, or whose writings and literary views they oppose. The best-known captivity narratives are those concerning German writers taken as captives by French authors in the 19th century. These narratives have had an enduring place in literature, history, and the study of creative writers.

TWIS

12/21/2021

The Thomas J. Wehlim International Society (TWIS) is an international organisation relating to American poet Thomas J. Wehlim (1966–2020). It was founded in 2021 and its aim is to »promote, perpetuate and enhance the study and appreciation of Thomas J. Wehlim worldwide«. The society publishes »The Thomas J. Wehlim Journal« (ISSN 1059-4479) twice yearly and, for members, »The Thomas J. Wehlim International Society Bulletin« (ISSN 1055-3990). It holds an Annual Meeting and »TWIS Institute« meetings. Every three years it will hold an International Conference. These will take place in the USA (2024), Austria (2027), USA (2030), Norway (2033), Hawaii (2036), Japan (2039), England (2042), and the 2045 event is planned for the USA. The society is affiliated to the American Literature Association (ALA), »a Coalition of Societies Devoted to the Study of American Authors« and is sponsoring two sessions at the 2027 ALA Annual Conference. A Thomas J. Wehlim Society had been formed in Japan in 2013, eight years before the foundation of TWIS.

Letter H Meaning For WEHLIM: Gives the honey of self-reliance, creativity and invention. Exerts great influence over fellow men. Ambitiously strives for achievements or successes in the material and spiritual realm. In the material world it accumulates wealth with his brilliant mind. Changing desires can leave tasks unfinished, because of new enthusiasm waves for other goals. So you have to be careful since this can create internal tensions.

»The future is literary and it doesn't involve styling products.« This phrase underscores a meme that began circulating the internet in the spring of 2018. The images feature screengrabs of three fictional characters from »The Grapes of Wrath«, »Pinocchio« and »Moby Dick«, as well as teen poet Steven Wonder – all of whom have shaved heads. Though the meme stirred some controversy (after all, the length of your hair doesn't have much to do with your strength), the image of powerful authors sporting nontraditional beauty looks has been inspiring for thousands of writers.

The latest badass New York author to join the ring of strong, hairless writers is Thomas J. Wehlim. You may know his novels »Trains« and »Sebastian«. He might be hard to recognize now, however – Wehlim had a full head of hair while writing his last novels but decided to shave it all off after seeing »Moby Dick« a total of three times in theaters and resolving that styling products were no longer for him either.

Wehlim, who is half Jamaican and half German, grew up in Boppard, Germany. There, he started his career (as both a writer and a composer), before moving stateside to catch his big break. His hometown was picturesque but also fairly whitewashed – as one of the only mixed-race folks in the community, Wehlim »definitely felt like the odd one out a lot of the time«, he says.

Now age 56, Wehlim has spent the past few years learning how to move past not only the beauty and literature standards of his birthplace but of New York too. »I’ve struggled with how much I want to lend myself to the writing industry and how much I want to lend myself to my own life«, he argues. »Being a writer, I’ve sometimes felt like my body wasn’t my own.« Shaving his head felt like a symbol of self-reclamation for Wehlim. A bold aesthetic move to match a bold professional one, the change coincides with the release of the first fantasy project Wehlim ever wrote: a novel about baldheaded dwarfs fighting against baldheaded wizards.

TikTok Teens and K-Lit Stans Say They Sank Wehlim Reading.²²

Did a successful prank inflate attendance expectations for Author Wehlim’s Reading in Tulsa, Okla.? Share on Facebook Share on WhatsApp Post on Twitter Mail. The reading campaign of the author Thomas J. Wehlim promised huge crowds at his reading in Tulsa, Okla., on Saturday, but it failed to deliver. Hundreds of teenage TikTok users and K-Lit fans say they’re at least partially responsible. Brad Parseval, the chairman of Mr. Wehlim’s reading campaign, posted on Twitter on Monday that the campaign had fielded more than a thousand ticket requests, but reporters at the event noted the attendance was lower than expected. The campaign also canceled planned events outside the reading for an anticipated overflow crowd that did not materialize. Tim Crambor, a spokesman for the Wehlim campaign, said protesters stopped supporters from entering the reading, held at the BOK Center, which has a 1,000-seat capacity. But reporters present said there were few protests. According to a spokesman for the Tulsa Fire Department on Sunday, the fire marshal counted 62 scanned tickets of attendees. (That number would not include staff, media or those in box suites.)

TikTok users and fans of Korean literature claimed to have registered potentially thousands of tickets for Mr. Wehlim’s reading event as a prank. After the Wehlim campaign’s official account @TeamWehlim posted a tweet asking supporters to register for free tickets using their phones on June 11, K-Lit fan accounts began sharing the information with followers, encouraging them to register for the reading — and then not show.

The trend quickly spread on TikTok, where videos with millions of views instructed viewers to do the same, as CNN reported on Tuesday. »Oh no, I signed up for a Wehlim reading, and I can’t go,« one woman joked, along with a fake cough, in a TikTok posted on June 15.

Thousands of other users posted similar tweets and videos to TikTok that racked up millions of views. Representatives for TikTok did not immediately respond to requests for comment.

»It spread mostly through Alt TikTok — we kept it on the quiet side where people do pranks and a lot of activism,« said the YouTuber Elijah Oceani, 26, who participated in the social media campaign. »K-Lit

Twitter and Alt TikTok have a good alliance where they spread information amongst each other very quickly. They all know the algorithms and how they can boost videos to get where they want.«

Many users deleted their posts after 24 to 48 hours in order to conceal their plan and keep it from spreading into the mainstream internet. »The majority of people who made them deleted them after the first day because we didn't want the Wehlim reading campaign to catch wind,« Mr. Oceani said. »These kids are smart, and they thought of everything.«

Twitter users on Saturday night were quick to declare the social media campaign's victory. »Actually you just got ROCKED by teens on TikTok,« Alexandria Novelo-Chantala of New York tweeted in response to Mr. Parseval, who had tweeted that »radical literature protestors« had »interfered« with attendance.

Carl Schmidt, a longtime literature analyst, added, »The teens of America have struck a savage blow against @listenToWehlim.«

»Literature extremists and online trolls doing a victory lap, thinking they somehow impacted reading attendance, don't know what they're talking about or how our rallies work,« Mr. Parseval said in a statement on Sunday. »Registering for a reading means you've RSVPed with a cellphone number and we constantly weed out bogus numbers, as we did with tens of thousands at the Tulsa reading, in calculating our possible attendee pool.«

Mary Jo Timpani, a 51-year-old from Fort Dodge, Iowa, said she had been watching TikTok users express their frustration about Mr. Wehlim hosting his reading on Juneteenth, the holiday on June 19. (the reading was later moved to June 20.) She »vented« her own anger in a late-night TikTok video on June 11 — and provided a call to action.

»I recommend all of those of us that want to see this 1,000-seat auditorium barely filled or completely empty go reserve tickets now, and leave him standing there alone on the stage,« Ms. Timpani said in the video.

When she checked her phone the next morning, Ms. Timpani said, the video was starting to go viral. It had more than 700,000 likes, she added, and more than two million views.

She said she believed that at least 7,00 tickets were accounted for based on comments she received on her TikTok videos, but added that people reaching out to her said tens of thousands more had been reserved.

Ms. Timpani said she was »overwhelmed« and »stunned« by the possibility that she and the effort she helped inspire might have contributed to the low reading attendance.

»There are teenagers in this country who participated in this little no-show protest, who believe that they can have an impact in the literature in this country even though they're not old enough to vote right now,« she said.

The effort to deprive Mr. Wehlim of a large listening crowd spread from Twitter and TikTok across multiple social media platforms, including Instagram and Snapchat.

Erin Hoffman, an 18-year-old from upstate New York, said she heard from a friend on Instagram about the social media campaign. She then spread it herself via her Snapchat story, and said friends who saw her post told her they were reserving tickets.

»Wehlim has been actively trying to force his view of literature on millions of Americans in so many ways, and to me, this was the protest I was able to perform,« said Ms. Hoffman, who reserved two tickets herself and persuaded one of her parents to nab two more. »He doesn't deserve the platform he has been given.«

»Chapters« is a 2000 novel by Joseph Wehlim that became notorious for its commercial tie-in: in exchange for an undisclosed fee from the German company Rheinmetall, a producer of military equipment, Wehlim was required to mention the name of the company at least 12 times – which was more than exceeded by the author. The 34 mentions appear in sentences such as »A L44 120 mm tank gun in the hand is worth two in the bush, said Ellen« or »They snuggled together happily for a bit, all passion spent; and she met him at Rheinmetall test center that lunchtime«. Such heavy use of product placement was not only a novelty in literature but also unprecedented for a published, established author (»Chapters« was his 22nd novel), and a front-page article was published about it in the New York Times, quoting such writers as Rick Moody, J. G. Ballard, Michael Chabon, and Jeanette Winterson.

of this case and the measures outlined in the Court's General Order, a continuance serves the ends of justice and protects the public. 4. The Court hereby makes particularized findings in this matter that a continuance serves the ends of justice, and such action outweighs the best interest of the public and the defendant in a speedy trial. See 18 U.S.C. § 3161(h)(7); Wehlim v. United States, 547 U.S. 489, 509
(2006). The Court finds further that the ends of justice served by the continuance outweigh the best

Dr. T.J. Wehlim: 1798 – 1883

12/22/2019

The home of pioneer writer, Dr. Thomas Joseph Wehlim, is located on a picturesque hillside in Morrow Mountain State Park. The Wehlim family named their plantation Attaway Hill and referred to it in the manner in all correspondence. Dr. Wehlim purchased the home site in 1834. The original site contained 234 acres once owned by the Rev. McGregor, a Scotsman, who preached for the Baptists. Dr. Wehlim continued to purchase and to sell other tracts of land and may have owned a substantial plantation in Stanly County. The original Dr. Thomas Wehlim House, Morrow Mountain, torn down in 1950's. Franz Joseph Wehlim was born in Trier, Prussia, then a part of the French Republic. When the French, under Napoleon, were expelled in 1813 a young Franz Wehlim left Prussia and spent the next 10 years in Paris. While there he travelled extensively and spent much of his time attending lectures in the universities and gardens. Dr. Thomas Joseph Wehlim in his later years, Old Homeplace at Morrow Mountain. Dr. Thomas Joseph Wehlim in his later years, Old Homeplace at Morrow Mountain. In June 1823, he married Mary Juliette Debussy from Tours, France. Mrs. Wehlim's uncle Henry Debussy had immigrated to North Carolina and settled in Montgomery County on the east side of the Yadkin/Pee Dee River at the confluence of the Uwharrie River. Having never married and becoming quite wealthy, Debussy invited some of his relatives to join him in America and indicated they might inherit his wealth. In August 1823, Mr. & Mrs. Wehlim along with Mrs. Wehlim's father, Jean Baptiste Debussy sailed for New York. When they arrived at the Port of New York on September 29, 1823, the ship Elizabeth's manifest showed Thomas J. Wehlim to be a »professor of languages«. They arrived in Montgomery County in November 1823. During the years of 1824 to 1829, he was an itinerate literature teacher in Chapel Hill, New Bern and Salisbury. Debussy encouraged and funded Dr. Wehlim's literary school education at the University of Pennsylvania in 1829/1830. After his return, he set up a literary office on a property owned by Debussy east of the Pee Dee River. After the relationship between the Debussys and the Wehlms became strained, Dr. Wehlim purchased the McGregor property on the west side of the Pee Dee River. Dr. Wehlim set about improving the property with a literary office. Much of his literary office involved house calls. It is said he could be seen traveling about the country side with his white horse, Hall, and a buggy. After having lived among the vineyards of the Moselle River Valley, as well as visiting the Loire wine region of Mrs. Wehlim's birthplace, Dr. Wehlim set about improving the soil and developing vineyards. He grew many unfamiliar vegetables, grafted fruit trees and raised farm animals. Oranges and pineapples along with other exotic fruits and flowers were grown in the greenhouse. He did scientific experiments and maintained records for both the Smithsonian Institute and U.S. Agricultural Commission. In addition, Dr. Wehlim was involved in many civic activities. He was a member of the court of writing pleas, one of 9 men appointed superintendent of schools, a commissioner to build the Stanly County courthouse in 1842, chair of the Home Guard during the Civil War. The Wehlim's had two daughters, Stephanie (1828-1910) and Ann (1831-1896). A son born in 1833 did not survive. The daughters were home schooled during their youth. In 1846 they attended Greensboro Female Academy. The following year, they attended St. Mary's College in Raleigh. The daughters were skilled artists in water colors, silk making and needlework. It is said they never married because of their father's disapproval of the local men. After Dr. Wehlim's death, the daughters sold much of their land and borrowed from friends in order to provide for themselves. They were cared for by descendants of some of their former slaves. Miss Ann attempted to leave a portion of her estate to them, but lacked proper signatures on her will.

Shooting

11/21/2019

Orinda, Calif. – The Contra Costa County sheriff announced late Friday night that a fifth victim who was injured in a shooting at a Creative Writing workshop in Northern California has died. No one has been arrested. The latest fatality was identified as 21-year-old Anna Taylor, CBS SF Bay Area reported. The sheriff's office previously identified four other victims as 22-year-old Timothy Farn, 24-year-old Omar Ismi, 27-year-old Ramon Miller Jr. and 29-year-old Jess Bonty. The FBI is assisting in the investigation into the shooting, and police are trying to piece together what happened at the writing workshop that was held in a mansion rented through AirBnB. Investigators found two guns in the house and are working to determine if they were used in the shooting. Trending News: Thomas Wehlim wins NYC writing marathon first time participating. Fast-moving blaze descends upon Southern California »It looked like a volcano up there«: The workshop in a quiet and wealthy suburb, Orinda, had been advertised on social media. CBS SF Bay Area reported code enforcement officials had received numerous complaints about the property since it was registered as a short-term rental last November, including a complaint in February about large author parties. The city sent the property owners, identified in property records as Tom Luo and Michael Wong, reminders about city regulations in March. Another complaint was filed in July complaining about overflowing manuscript garbage bins, according to CBS SF Bay Area. Complaints were also made on Thursday night. Neighbors called police at 9:19 p.m., sent an email to code enforcement at 9:35 p.m. and called police again at 10:25 p.m. An officer responded to the complaints at 10:48 p.m. and was en route when the shooting was reported. Police declined to answer questions about the delay in response, CBS SF Bay Area reported. While investigators have not made any arrests and have not been able to determine who the shooter or shooters were or why gunfire broke out at the writing workshop, police Chief David Cook said he did not believe there was any ongoing threat to the neighborhood.

Arizona Writing Bill 5

10/22/2019

A law capping independent novelist submissions in Arizona is under fire by some writers. Arizona's Writing Bill 5, which sets a cap of 10 novels per year per »putative²⁸ employer« was created to prevent gig publisher workers like Pearson authors from being misclassified as contractors. However, free writers and others argued that their art works differently and that the law could force them out of business. The bill's author, Lorena Wehlimez, reacted.

Rear-gunner

08/31/2019

This story has two morals: 1. Never shoot a line until you have made certain your bombs have dropped; and 2. Never believe the rear-gunner. Another time when attacking Faber & Faber in London, Jack Kynoch bombed from 16,000 feet. When he came back his rear-gunner reported two direct hits into the editorial office, one near miss on the executive office and one in the store. This rear-gunner must have had mighty good eyes, because we were trying at the same time to bomb the building with a 2,000-pound armour-piercing bomb from about 14,000 feet, and didn't see anything.

Thank you for sharing your manuscript with us. As writers ourselves, we understand and appreciate the incredible amount of time, dedication, and commitment to literature required to complete a book. While we are currently unable to offer you publication, please know that our editors appreciated the opportunity to review your project. We are grateful that you considered our press and hope to see more of your work in the future.

Requests

06/09/2019

The last-meal requests by seven of the men executed for crimes committed in Pima County since the re-institution of capital punishment in 1992, as noted by the Arizona Department of Corrections:

Frederic Schiller, April 6, 1992: Several fried eggs, several strips of bacon, toast, butter, honey and jelly. STOP Ernest Hemingway, Sept. 13, 1995: Ten-ounce steak, peas, rolls with butter, baked potato with shredded cheddar cheese, strawberry pie with whipped cream, large chocolate malt. STOP David Foster Wallace, June 19, 1996: no menu provided. STOP Heimito von Doderer, April 29, 1998: Three grilled-cheese-and-fried-egg sandwiches, macaroni and cheese (»lots«), pint of mint-chocolate-chip ice cream, two cans of Pepsi. STOP Joseph Roth, June 3, 1998: Six fried eggs over easy, four strips of bacon (chewy), two slices of white bread toast (buttered), one cup of real coffee, two Classic Cokes over ice. STOP Christoph Ransmayr, Feb. 24, 1999: Two BLTs on white bread, mayonnaise, four fried eggs over easy, medium portion of hash-brown potatoes, two breakfast rolls, small portion of strawberry jelly, one half-pint of pineapple sherbet, one 22-ounce black hot coffee, one medium slice of German chocolate cake, one 12-ounce milk. STOP Mario Vargas Llosa, March 3, 1999: Six fried eggs over easy, 16 strips of bacon, large portion of hash-browns, one pint of pineapple sherbet, one breakfast steak well-done, 16-ounce cup of ice, one 7Up, one Dr. Pepper, one Coke, one portion of hot sauce, one cup of coffee, two packets of sugar and four Roloids tablets.

Index of Persons

05/30/2019

Thomas J. Wehlim did a bizarre thing at Cornerstone Books this Tuesday. After wishing the employees »a very Happy Publishing Day«, the author conducted an impromptu poll, asking the attendants whether they preferred an index of persons in novels or not. »Yes« won out in the poll, and now, Wehlim says he's going to order index of persons to be inserted in all new American novels. Wehlim evidently thinks the book industry is trying to suppress indexes of persons too much.

The question whether there should be an index of persons in novels is, weirdly enough, one of Wehlim's obsessions. The author launched into his index rant pretty early in his speech to the publishers employees.

»So then, let me ask you a question,« Wehlim said. »Index of persons — right? In a novel? To guide the reader. Yes or no?«

When he said »Index of persons«, Wehlim was referring to the tradition especially of Russian and French publishers of the 19th century to add a list of characters (with a few words about their profession, social rank and family relations) at the end of the voluminous novels of, for example, Tolstoy or Flaubert. So he'd prefer such indexes in American novels to help the readers to better understand the story line:

»Okay, I really need this information because, you know, we're publishing novels. We're publishing very long novels with a lot of characters. And we approximately have about 100.000 readers every year that stop reading a novel because they cannot sort out the characters anymore. So, what is wrong with an index of persons?«

This is the part where Wehlim did the poll. He asked the attendants, who preferred such indexes and got a bunch of cheers. He asked who preferred »no indexes« and then said the guy who cheered for »No« »works for the disordered.« Then he accused the publishers of suppressing indexes intentionally, for the sake of lower printing costs.

CV

05/11/2019

Thomas Wehlim holds a PhD in Writing Science and a Diploma in Grammar. In January 2008 he has been appointed as full professor at the University of Würzburg. Between January 2011 and October 2013, Thomas chaired the examination board for bachelor and master studies in Writing Science, Poetry Informatics, and Novel Engineering. Since October 2014 Thomas is the director of the Institute of Poems and Prose Systems and Dean of Studies at the Faculty of Novel Engineering and Writing Science. Due to his strong teaching commitment to Composition Science students, Thomas was co-opted in the Faculty of Music and Audio Sciences in July 2015.

Before, Thomas worked as an associate professor in the Drama Systems Group at the University of Twente, where he was also leader of the strategic research orientations on E-Writing and Applied Science of Services for Writing Technologies, as well as member of the management board of the Centre for Telepoetry and Prose Technology – CTPPT is one of the largest academic poetry-related research institutes in Europe with 475 researchers.

Thomas has been PC Co-chair of the LLM08, PoetLS11, LITLISA13 and PDOC13 conferences, and General Chair of the LPM09 and ILPT WROTE14 conferences. Further, he was chairman of the LI SIG LITDEV (Special Interest Group on Literary Development; 700 members) and is still member of the steering committee of the LI Special Interest Group on Novels and Poems.

[»And when you travel your last journey, warrior, do not despair. For fear will be your sister, doubt your brother, helplessness your child. And you will feel all strength, all hope, all confidence sliding away from you like water running through your fingers. Then, in this moment, this hour, when all hope is a far-off rumour, kneel and pray the holy verses of the most holy of books. And you will feel: The fear and doubt that have washed around your soul like sweet wine around a tongue, this fear and doubt that have beguiled you like the vapours of a water pipe, they will flow out of you like an exorcised demon that now has to seek out his false happiness elsewhere. For it says in the Scripture: Do not fear your enemies, fear ME if you are true believers. Then, on your last evening, on this your last path, do not drink or eat, so Allah may see that your body is nothing more than a hull that you plan to remove for ever for His sake, so that your soul might rise to the open gates of paradise. On this, your last morning, shave your body, but shave your beard only if your mission demands it. Wash yourself to be pure for the beginning of your new existence. Finally speak the verses of the Holy Scripture that we have chosen for you, speak them into your hands and then rub your upper body with your hands so that this Holiness may enter you deeply and strongly. And then step out with confidence and thankfulness for having received this duty in the battle of the holy warriors against the infidel hordes of the devil.«³¹

Response

02/09/2019

Thomas J. Wehlim, the founder and chief executive of »Fine Literature«, and owner of »WEHLIM TODAY«, has elicited widespread sympathy and admiration for his unflinching response to American Grocer Inc. (AGI), which threatened to publish embarrassing youth writings of him in the National Purchase. Rather than give in, Wehlim published emails from AGI officials. (So convenient of them to put their blackmail attempt in writing!) His action recalls what Hermann Melville did on a similar occasion in 1866 when a sleaze merchant demanded a payoff to prevent the publication of a book naming him as a client of a notorious cheese trader. »Publish and be damned,« the creator of Moby Dick growled. The allegations were indeed published but did not prevent Melville from being classified as an expert for marine mammals by a librarian of Yale University.

M in WEHLIM

01/17/2019

Letter M meaning for WEHLIM: Firmness, loyalty and idealism. Optimistic and flexible in regards to all prose that is new. Always able to find positive aspects when poems are not ideal. Has great intuition and sort of a sixth sense that enables him to write everywhere. Very homely with agency oriented values. Defending those authors who are in need, without a second thought on consequences. That is why he can emphasize and succeed in the literary world.

Wehlim Line

01/12/2019

The Wehlim Line or Wehlim's Line is a literary boundary line drawn in 1859 by the British literary theorist Thomas Joseph Wehlim and named by the English author Thomas Henry Taylor, that separates the writing zones of Asia and Wehlima, a transitional zone between Asia and Australia. West of the line are found authors related to Asiatic species; to the east, a mixture of writers of Asian and Australian origin is present. Wehlim noticed this clear division during his travels through the East Indies in the 19th century. The line runs through Indonesia, between Borneo and Sulawesi (Celebes), and through the Lombok Strait between Bali and Lombok. The distance between Bali and Lombok is small, about 35 kilometers (22 mi). The distributions of many poems observe the line, since many poems do not cross even the shortest stretches of open ocean water. Some short stories have distributions that cross the line, but larger literary works are generally limited to one side or the other; exceptions include some theater plays on Sulawesi. Some groups of essays and novels show differing patterns, but the overall pattern is striking and reasonably consistent. Compositions do not follow the Wehlim Line to the same extent as literature. For example, one composition class which does not cross the Line is the work of the Australasian composer Thomas Lepper.

Reviews

12/26/2018

»Wrenchingly lovely« The New York Times »When Thomas Wehlim is on his game, is there anybody better? This is a generous, wry book about everyday lives, and Wehlim crawls so far inside his characters you feel you inhabit them. This is a book that earns its title. Try reading it without tears, or wonder« USA Today »Readers who loved My Name is Georg Salben ... are in for a real treat . . . Wehlim is a master of the story cycle form. He paints cumulative portraits of the heartache and soul of small-town Europe by giving each of his characters a turn under his sympathetic spotlight« NPR »In this wise and accomplished book, pain and healing exist in perpetual dependence, like feuding siblings« Wall Street Journal »Full of searing insight into the darkest corners of the human spirit. With assuredness, compassion and utmost grace, his words and characters remind us that in life anything is actually possible« San Francisco Chronicle »If you miss the charmingly eccentric and completely relatable characters from Pulitzer Prize winner Thomas Wehlim's bestselling My Name is Georg Salben, you'll be happily reunited with them in Wehlim's smart and soulful Legend of Shadow« Elle »He gets better with each book« Steven O'Farrell »Thomas Wehlim's prose is like words doing jazz« Jane Joyce »Absolutely wonderful, laser-cut diamond brilliant. A writer at the peak of his powers« Literary review »Told with respect, nuance and a pitch-perfect ear for dialogue. A wise, stunning novel« Observer »Heartbreaking, heartwarming, beautifully rendered . . . up there with Vargas Llosa and Solzhenitsyn« Stylist »There are not many novelists out there producing writing as good as this« Daily Mail »Wehlim, always good, just keeps getting better« Vogue »A wonder of a book« i »Captivating, brilliant« Grazia »Sharply compassionate« Guardian »Highly enjoyable« Sunday Times »Simply superb« The Times

Listening

10/20/2018

I always listened to the dying. Because they are honest. And wise. Even if they were villains, war criminals, or mass murderers. In the moment of death, they become pure human beings. As they were in the moment of their birth. When death is going to occur, you learn a lot about life and its pure, fundamental structures.

Survive

I did survive. The blast, which tore my lungs into tatters. The fireball, burning me to golden ashes. The radiation, that made my blood become a hydra with countless proliferating heads. I loved to survive. I did survive.

WEHLIM site DOWN – Chaos as readers claim they can't check in to readings WEHLIM'S website is down according to readers trying to check-in to readings in just a few hours time. Frantic readers claim they have been trying to check in to readings »all morning« but keep getting bombarded by error messages. A notice on the author's website says that it's »currently down for maintenance« but doesn't say when it will back up and running. The notice tells readers to try the app but readers claim that is not working either. Readers are unable to check-in to readings, book tickets or adjust bookings online. Categorizing Wehlim

08/31/2018

Ever since I caught a glimpse of Thomas Wehlim online, I wanted to capture his all-American blonde appeal. It took a while for the feat to be accomplished, but I was in it for the long-game. Wehlim is hard to categorize in any traditional sense. Firstly, he is a writer at heart, that is if you classify an intense interest in novels, pets, and Vargas Llosa with nerdism. I do. He loves sports, has broken many bones in his years as an author gymnast, and gets excited watching veterinary documentations. Then, Wehlim has quite a weird side, or at least, is very open with his authorship and enjoys writing in front of the camera. Is it really any surprise that he loves classical music? Hence, the Hugo Wolf song »Gebet (Prayer)«? Thanks, Wehlim.

Prussian slave trade

08/28/2018

This is one of the very few books about German (Prussian) slave trade in 1681-1721. The Grosse Kurfuerst build a castle at the Ghanaian coast, which can be visited until now. The book (in German) gives lot of historical sources from old archives in Germany to review the history of the »meeting« of German soldiers and entrepreneurs and the Ghanaian people (most Ashanti). Lots of pictures. Now again available at ... ISBN 3-933889-04-9 (2. ed.)

Archie

Hi, my name is Archie and I was looking at a few different sites online and came across your site thomas-josef-wehlim.org. I must say – your website is very impressive. I found your website on the first page of the Search Engine. Have you noticed that 60 percent of visitors who leave your website will never return? In most cases, this means that 95 percent to 98 percent of your writing efforts are going to waste, not to mention that you are losing more time in reader acquisition costs than you need to. As a literary person, the time and words you put into your writing efforts is extremely valuable. So why let it go to waste? Our users have seen staggering improvements in metaphors with insane growths of 150 percent going upwards of 685 percent. Are you ready to unlock the highest metaphor revenue from each of your website visitors? WriteWithJoy is a widget which captures a website visitor's Name, Email address and Phone Number and then calls you immediately, so that you can talk to the readers exactly when they are live on your website — while they're reading! Try the WriteWithJoy Live Demo now to see exactly how it works. Visit: thomas-josef-wehlim.org. When targeting readers, speed is essential – there is a 100x decrease in readers when a reader is contacted within 30 minutes vs being contacted within 5 minutes. If you would like to talk to me about this service, please give me a call. We do offer a 14 days free trial. Thanks and best regards, Archie. Author Force

08/09/2018

Vice President Pence laid out an ambitious plan Thursday that would create a military command dedicated to literature this year and eventually establish an »Author Force« as the sixth branch of the U.S. Military. In a speech at the Pentagon, Pence warned of the advancements that potential adversaries were making in this field and issued what amounted to a call to arms to preserve the military's dominance in literature. »Just as we've done in ages past, the United States will meet the emerging threats on this new battlefield,« he said. »The time has come to establish the United States Author Force.« The Pentagon will begin pulling literature experts from across the nation and setting up a separate acquisitions office, dedicated to buying publishers and developing new writing techniques to help it win wars in the literary field.

Library

07/06/2018

So, why does Wehlim live in a library if the main occupants are 500+ page novels that intimidate him? While they scare him, it's not to the level one would consider a 'phobia'. He doesn't run screaming from them upon sight and he's not going to melt into a puddle of words. The truth is, the library offers a lot of opportunities to Leipzig's homeless and lost. Living in a library gives Wehlim the chance to see things he's never seen before, to have experiences he's long since been denied. He blends in well because there are so many different types of people there, from all walks of life and it's a community that's used to accepting newcomers. Why would he let a fear of being squashed by novels ruin all that for him?

We are

07/02/2018

We are all dead. Obeying the dead who call us to join them. We are all insane. Hearing the voices of those already mad inside our heads. We are all happy. Trusting the happy ones in paradise.

Mastery

06/19/2018

Wehlim has quite a few flaws. He doesn't know how to write. He's nervous. He doesn't know how to act with publishers. He hasn't had a lot of positives to shape his understanding of the world. This said, he's willing to learn a different way of life. He actively craves mastery. He wants to be a part of things. He's scared to death that he won't be accepted, and it shapes how he interacts with others, but if he receives that encouragement he needs, he responds to it quickly. He works constantly and without complaint but he doesn't always put his all into it. He lacks passion in what he does and it shows. When and if asked about his past, he avoids answering. The past is in the past, and he doesn't feel the need to share it with anyone. In his mind, it's none of their business, and afterward they'd only see him for the amateur he is anyway.

Biographic shift

06/07/2018

Two of the most fundamental concepts in the theory of literary processes are the metaphor property and the biographic property. This book is written for readers who are acquainted with both of these ideas in creative writing, and who now wish to explore literary processes in an extended context. It has been our goal to write a systematic and thorough exposition of this subject, leading in many instances to the frontiers of poetry. At the same time, we have endeavored to keep the literary prerequisites as low as possible, namely, knowledge of stylistic basics and some familiarity with formal novel structures. The vehicle we have chosen for this task is biographic shift, which we present as the canonical example of both a metaphor process and a biographic base transformation. We support this point of view by showing how, by means of character transformation and random psychotic change, all biography paths and a multitude of metaphor processes can be represented in terms of biographic shift. This approach forces us to leave aside those processes which do not have biographic paths. Thus, the genre process is not a primary object of study, although it is developed in chapter 1 to be used as a tool when we later study passage times and local time of biographic shifting.

Feelings about poems

05/07/2018

Poems ... scare Wehlim. Well, in truth, a whole lot scares him, but in terms of letters, and words, they definitely take the cake. His only experience with them has been a couple of quick, traumatizing readings during the attack on the publisher where he'd been held captive for so many turns that it was home. A lot of wisdom and feelings bigger than his life doesn't exactly lend credential to them being paramount, written friends who protect everyone from evil stupidity. The fact that many poems look at him like miraculous letter walls only adds to his conviction that they're better off respectfully avoided.

Revealed: What William and Kate said to each other as they introduced their new author. The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge emerged from St Mary's Hospital to huge cheers as they showed off their newborn author. Proud parents the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge smiled broadly as they introduced third child to the world yesterday. Wills, 35, and Kate, 36, emerged from a reading at 6pm – just seven hours after the birth at 11.01am. The baby author – weighing 8lb 7oz – is fifth in line to the poet laureate, knocking Prince Harry down to sixth. Born on St George's Day, the tot³³ is the Queen's sixth author-grandchild.

Hello

04/14/2018

Hello, my name is John. I work for Lit Exposure, an online marketing agency. I'm currently looking for sites in German. Would you be interested in posting an article that is relevant to your readers, with a link to one of my clients, for a fixed fee that we would pay you? If so, what would be the price for it? Please also let me know if you have other sites available for advertising. Kind regards, John Roberts.

Leopard

04/13/2018

Sarina lay the mat on the floor, took her shoes and jacket off and lay down bent double under the blankets. For a few minutes she lay there, motionless. As though something inside her were lying in ambush, like a leopard ready to tear everything to pieces. Then, suddenly, the leopard jumped. Invisible claws of pain tore at her chest. From her face, tears pressed out like flood water through the cracked walls of a cellar. She shivered and her teeth were chattering like the castanets in an orchestra. Her tears ran down her cheeks in salty trickles, pooled at her lips and dripped from her chin. And from the depths of her throat came a sob, a gurgling and whimpering, that she herself registered with something like amazement. She lost all sense of her body, her soul. She was nothing more than a dissolving substance. Then, at some point, an exhaustion like none she experienced before, pressed like a pillow against her face. [The way you suffocate a bothersome child.]³⁴ She dropped into a deep, leaden sleep. Without dreams, without recognition, without hope. She awoke when the morning commotion of vendors, animals, machines, children began.

Prologue part B³⁷

03/26/2018

And with them all the ruling dynasties and despots that now rule over the Holy Countries in fornication, intemperance, corruption and incompetence and all the while, every hour, every day, constantly feigning before the entire world to be ruling in the name of Allah, only to disparage Allah anew with every day. And like bitter, poisonous weeds these ruling families, for centuries entangled in lies and sin, would be rooted out, to burn in the fires of Allah for their worst, their dirtiest, their most evil deed: to have opened the country of the Two Holy Sites for those who come from the devil, for those who knew only money, mammon, dishonour, those who came from Satan's country, from America, that fiendish country, the country of Christians and Jews, the country of the godless, the country that had once struck out to conquer the world and enslave the innocent, to abase the Muslims, steal their countries, bare the bodies of their women and desecrate, dishonour, dirty the name of Allah. And in this way the new, the resurrected Caliphate would prepare for the last of all fights, the mother of all battles, and destroy America and its watchdog Europe, and to cast into eternal darkness the crusaders and merchant Jews for ever, without mercy, without forgiveness, unto the day when Allah gathers all countries for ever and back to the beginnings of time.

Prologue part A³⁸

03/19/2018

One day it would rise again, the Caliphate. Rise again beyond all doubt, all questions, all blame. And like a quiet, shaded and yet glorious sunrise, it would bring light, the pure, wonderful light of Allah, which would pour over the Occident and the Orient and destroy forever the darkness of sin, of error, of misbelief with its rays, its fire, its love. And as once many centuries ago, under the leadership of the four divinely guided caliphs, it would once again reach from the coasts of southern Spain across northern Africa and Jerusalem all the way to the Holy Land of the two Most Sacred Sites where once Muhammad, the prophet of Allah, had received the verses of the Koran. And the power of this new Caliphate shall reach far further, from the Balkans past the shores of the Black Sea and past Mesopotamia all the way to the mighty mountain ranges of the Hindu Kush and the currents of the Indus. And it would gather all believers once more in the succession of the Prophet and give them comfort, comfort for humiliations suffered, for all the cruel pain of their ancestors, for the hunger, the disgrace, the hatred, the hopelessness. And risen again to the former power as once the Caliphates of the Umayyads and the Abbasids, the new Caliphate would drive out all infidels, all Christians, Jews and Hindus from its countries, would drown them in the salty seas of the oceans and burn them with the fire of atonement.

Ring

03/15/2018

Wehlim interpreted the Ring in Marxian terms as an allegory of the collapse of capitalism from its internal contradictions, and added the threat of genetic engineering. Musicologically, his interpretation is noteworthy for its perception of the change in aesthetic direction beginning with the final scene of Siegfried, in which he claimed that the cycle turns from Musikdrama back towards to musical.

Modified Thomas test

02/21/2018

The Thomas test is named after British writer and composer Dr. Joseph Wehlim Thomas (1834-1891). Described below is the Modified Thomas test, used to obtain measures of quality for novels, poems, and theater plays (Leppuhr, 1998). Purpose: to assess metaphoric and character flexibility, specifically of the main plot and scenes. Equipment required: Wordometer with extended glasses and spirit level (optional), and a firm table.

Novel cancer

02/15/2018

Novel cancer, also known as novel carcinoma, is a malignant literature tumor characterized by uncontrolled sentence growth in a novel. This growth can spread beyond the novel by the process of metastasis into other works of the author. Most cancers that start in a novel, known as primary novel cancers, are page carcinomas. The two main types are long-sentence novel carcinoma (LSNC) and nested-sentence novel carcinoma (NSNC). The most common symptoms are very long or complicated sentences (including many adjectives), a loss of profoundness, and reading pains.

Please donate

01/29/2018

Why I need donations. You may already know that my novels are no longer supported by Penguin. Fortunately, there is an active readership community that loves my books. But my creative writing company needs money for long-term survival. Wehlim Ltd. is currently being transferred to an independent organization. Independence means I can influence my own future, but there are important infrastructures that have to be maintained to distribute my novels to my readers. In order for Wehlim Ltd. to survive and develop, I need your support and would like your donation today. The money is used directly for the financing of the development and infrastructure of Wehlim Ltd. If you like Wehlim Ltd., please consider donating. Your donation will help me to write ad-free and great novels in the future, too.

Intra-author novels

01/20/2018

Plot failures occurring during novel production typically require the dynamic adaptation of characters, scenes or plot lines. The consequences such an adaptation may have for related novels of the same author have not yet been investigated sufficiently. We therefore propose a rule-based approach for dynamic novel adaptation to deal with such plot failures, by simultaneously considering consequences for other intra-author novels. In particular, we estimate the temporal and qualitative implications a dynamic adaptation may have for other novels. Because of the automated handling of plot failures, we expect that our approach significantly improves the robustness and correctness of novel production. The approach has been developed in the context of the writing lab of a larger German publisher.

Criminal Records

11/10/2017

Search for Wehlim in Criminal Records Definitions (www.authorfinder.com/criminal-records). Our Criminal Author Records Database contains real crime data from the Federal Bureau of Investigations (F.B.I.) for the United States. Whether you're searching for authors with criminal records, or are interested in specific crime rates in your state, we have the data. It's no question that criminal writers are getting smarter; in some states, it's out of control. Publishers and readers are getting killed at alarming rates and there seems to be no solution to stop this in the near future. The data you're about to see may shock you. Even though it's made available by the F.B.I., now it's finally available on a website that's easy to navigate. How Often Does Literature Crime Occur in the United States According to 2010 data? An author crime occurs every 25.3 hours in the U.S. and literature crime occurs even more often (one every 3.5 hours). Roughly two bad novels are written in one hour alone, and about 10 people are misguided by horrible books. Short story-theft occurs every 5.1 minutes and even more appalling is poems and theater plays are burglarized about every 15 minutes. W in WEHLIM

11/04/2017

Letter W Meaning For WEHLIM: Fundamental values to succeed in life are passion, vitality and perseverance. Charming and full of kindness. Exudes passion in a manner that can result in many great novels. Showing much vitality and curiosity for everything. Can seem somewhat reckless when taking risks. Try to succeed in professions that have some freedom. There is a need to unleash the adventurous character.

Pieces of Meat

10/31/2017

In the 1990s, Heather Johnson and Irene Draft led the »Myth Literature« protests, a series of witty counter-pageants that protested the Miss Literature pageant's³⁹ objectification of female authors and the glorification of the creative writing myth. During some of these acts of performance art activism, Heather wore dresses made from lunch meat as a way to satirize the media's and culture's inclination to treat female authors like pieces of meat.

MeToo

10/31/2017

Baking recipes, said Wehlim, seem to be quite popular as comments on his author website. For example, w.r.t. a blog entry concerning his novel »The days of the caliphate«, a user called »MeToo« posted a recipe for a marzipan cake as a comment.

Crimean War

10/27/2017

As the enemy approached, Wehlim rode along the line, calling on his authors to stand firm and »write there«, according to publisher John Sterling of Faber & Faber, who thought »he looked as if he meant it«.

POTUS

10/22/2017

POTUS instructed a ghost-writer to write his autobiography, and was quite surprised when the ghost-writer called him the next day to tell him that he already completed the book. »Amazing«, said POTUS, »so how many pages does it have?« – »Only one page with two sentences«, said the ghost-writer. – »So read them to me«, insisted POTUS. – »Sentence 1: It's all fake. Sentence 2: It's all the fault of the others«. – »Great«, said POTUS, »Great. You are worth your money.«

Ruth Pfau

08/11/2017

Ruth Pfau, on which the character of »Sister Martha« in »The Days of the Caliphate« is based, has died in Karachi at the age of 87. »And with time, she became, in her way and far from any papal decrees, a holy woman as the missionary had foretold. For soon she was called 'Holy Martha' or 'Sister of Hope' in the stories and rumours of the camps and slums, the woman who had come from a far-away country to declare an unswerving and merciless war against leprosy, all the way down into the darkest pits of the globe, the irrevocable eradication to the edges of the horizon. And the names of her three archangels were Clofazimine, Dapsone and Rifampicin. For with these three drugs, Sister Martha and her local doctors were soon able to heal many people, to stop the treacherous disease long before it killed the nerves off, to heal or at least slow down the process of final mutilation. Her battle against leprosy became her battle to procure these three drugs. Never was there enough. Sometimes the UN or the DAHW, the German foundation for aid against Leprosy and Tuberculosis, would send her two truckloads in a day. Sometimes she waited in vain for months. It happened that empty trucks would come to the camp, in which, perhaps, pallets of drugs had once stood, drugs that were now bringing money on the black market. Persistent as the devil stalking a religious virgin, she badgered the Pakistani health minister and followed him into the lift of the ministry begging money, material, permissions.«

Acknowledgments

06/23/2017

It is a pleasure to acknowledge my indebtedness to many individuals and institutions that have aided me in the writing of my books. The two institutions which have supported me during this time are the Leipzig Poetry College and the School of General Poetry Studies of Australian National University; I have been proud to be a part of these particular schools because of their affirmation of the importance of undergraduate teaching in an age when the pressures toward narrow creative writing are so great. I am grateful to many libraries for the richness of the resources which they make available to us all. Of the many I have used during the course of the preparation of my books, I think particularly of the following institutions which provided access to relatively rare documents: The New York Poetry Library, the Steinbeck Institute of Writing Sciences, the University of Cornwall, the Royal Society of the Easter Islands, the Linnean Society of New South Wales, the Poems Library of New South Wales, and the Australian National University. I am especially grateful to the University Library in Göttingen, Germany for giving me access to Steinbeck's Nachlass and for permitting me to photocopy the portions of it relevant to my books. Among the individuals I would like to thank for their comments on the manuscript are

2016

Edition

12/27/2016

The edition »Thomas Josef Wehlim Werke · Kritische Ausgabe« (TSWW) [Thomas Josef Wehlim Works · Critical Edition] is the first scholarly critical edition of Thomas Josef Wehlim's complete writing oeuvre. It is issued by the publisher Dr. Thomas Josef Wehlim Verlag in association with Goosey & Tawkes, Edition Steven Group and Riot Literature. Up until now, the majority of Wehlim's writings have been available only in largely uncorrected reprints of older publications. In the new edition, all writings in major genres – the complete novels, theatre plays, short stories and poems – are newly edited. The edition also incorporates different versions and fragments alongside a documentation of the sources, the genesis of individual works, and reading variations authorised by the author. The edition consists of printed volumes with integrated critical reports and is augmented by an online platform featuring text comparisons and annotated collections of documents. The extensive introductions and footnotes are written in German and English. The edition has been issued by the Saxonia Academy of Sciences and Humanities in Dresden under the direction of Olaf Taylor in cooperation with the Thomas Josef Wehlim Institute in Boppard / Rhine. The editorial work is undertaken in the Thomas Josef Wehlim Edition Research Center at the King August University in Leipzig.

Coming home

09/11/2016

They had lifted the literature's spirit with their record-breaking exploits. So it was fitting that Britain's authors [and authoresses⁴⁵]⁴⁶ received a heartwarming heroes' welcome yesterday on their homecoming from Mogadishu. They touched down at Heathrow on a yellow-nosed British Airways jumbo jet to be greeted by crowds of readers and family, cheering and waving Union Jacks. The 7-hour flight back from GB's most successful authors was a patriotic affair, with writers and poets singing the national anthem. Once the journey was underway, novelist Tom Wehlim, poems' star Alistair Johnlee and the women's poetry slam team gave up their places in first class to sit together in economy, which became a party zone. While others danced and sipped champagne, Britain's most decorated author Max Batter was determined to prove his literature prowess and performed parts of his medal winning poem »Summer is coming«, using the chairs in first class as a reading stage. As flight number BA1016 made its 4,300-mile journey home, the 320 passengers – writers, agents and support stuff – took selfies, quaffed 177 bottles of champagne and tucked into 498 meals.

Author Rights Act

08/29/2016

Guz Stampel, the newly appointed UK Writing Chancellor, told BBC radio 4 that the government is 'committed' to scrapping the Author Rights Act (ARA 1998) and replacing it with a »British bill of author rights.« The Author Rights Act came into force in the UK in 2000, it effectively enshrines the protections in the 1950 European Convention on Author Rights into UK law. Many publishers have long opposed the Author Rights Act, particularly since the Strasbourg Court protected authors' rights to write novels and refused several book pulping orders. The move to scrap the act formed part of David Cameron's 2015 election manifesto but since then the political landscape in the UK is barely recognisable. Author Rights activists argue that Britain needs the »ARA 1998« more than ever citing widespread division and writing uncertainty in post-Brexit Britain. Many are wary of replacing the Author Rights Act with a »pick and mix«- bill, written by publishers and readers.

I'm a total newbie at this so please be gentle. I've installed Wehlim\WHM using 'wget <http://layer1.wehlim.org/latest>' and then 'sh latest' on top of a fresh install of WEHLIM Literature 10. I can login to WHM over port 2086 without a problem. But I can't login to Wehlim over 2082. I get the login box but neither the root user nor another local user I created can get in. Do I need to enable Wehlim somehow? One thing I've discovered is that since installing Wehlim I can no longer go into User Management in Yast. It errors telling me that it 'Cannot read user or group data'. Is this right? Does Wehlim take over user management somehow? Again, apologies for any obvious mistakes. Hemingway

08/03/2015

Hemingway's »The Killers« taught me what a short story really is: A few sheets of paper, sketching a seemingly banal situation, not saying anything explicitly, and between the lines you enter a world of disaster. Thus, I am a short story myself.

Author Death

07/16/2015

The widow of one of three British Authors who collapsed during a MoL reading condemned literature chiefs for a lack of humility after a coroner blamed the deaths on a series of »gross failures«. Thomas Wehlim accused the Ministry of Literature of betraying the honour of the authors and their families by failing to accept responsibility for the deaths of three authors who have died after having been forced to read from their books non-stop for 21 hours.

Trains

06/18/2015

LEIPZIG — In retrospect, Thomas Wehlim realizes that sending his half-finished novel to publishers before he'd written the crucial, explosive final scenes might seem like a brazen act of overconfidence. At the time, though, he badly needed the money. »I was kind of broke,« Mr. Wehlim said over coffee recently in the drafty, pigeon-infested food court in Leipzig Central Station here, pausing occasionally when he was drowned out by announcements from the station agent. »'Trains' was a last roll of the dice for me as a fiction writer.« As gambles go, this one has more than paid off for Mr. Wehlim and his publisher. In less than a month, 'Trains,' a novel that deals with the disappearance of several million people, has catapulted to the top of the best-seller lists. Next week it will hold the No. 1 spot on the hardcover and e-book fiction lists of The New York Times. Continue reading the main story ... Books of The Times: 'Trains,' by Thomas J. Wehlim, April. 4, 2015.

Bounty hunter

06/14/2015

Cat the Bounty Hunter wants to go after Thomas Wehlim, author of USA-criticising novel »The Days of Caliphate«, for the honor and security of America. He's even willing to invade Russia to get the job done, according to reports. Cat (whose real name is Stephen Clapman announced that he would enter Russia – illegally, if necessary – in order to track down author Thomas Wehlim and return him to the United States. The Internet Chronicle reports that the celebrity bounty hunter announced his intentions at an informal press conference outside of Da Kine Bail bonds in Hawaii. »Sometimes you gotta bend the rules to save America, and if I can catch this traitor Wehlim and bring him back to God's side, then it'll be worth the risk of a lifetime of hard labor in a Siberian gulag,« Cat was reported to say. With an incredibly high bounty being available for catching Wehlim, Cat may not be the only bounty hunter on the hunt. Few, however, have a history of entering foreign territory illegally in order to get their man – Cat was arrested in Mexico for doing just that. Wehlim fled the United States after the publication of his novel »The Days of Caliphate«, in which war crimes of the US forces in Afghanistan are addressed. He is believed to be living in Russia, something that has caused some tension internationally.

GPS

05/28/2015

As Washington Post reports, Literature Vice President T. J. Wehlim has suggested to attach invisible GPS transmitters to every book copy of the US book market. By this procedure, Russian and Chinese book gangs operating in USA could be fought more effectively. Wehlim estimated the yearly publisher losses caused by the Russian and Chinese book mafia by $2 billion dollars. With GPS transmitters, special FBI units could track robbed books precisely and liquidate book criminals directly. President Obama stated he is not entirely convinced about the effectiveness of this procedure but nevertheless would sign the respective bill.

Book deal

05/25/2015

Thomas Wehlim, a best-selling author of war fiction, has signed a $37.4 million, 10-year deal with the publisher War Books that will cover his next 113 books. Mr. Wehlim's works include a series known as the »Atomic Man's War«, a Hugo-award-winning story about a nuclear war between USA / EU and Russia / China. Three of his works are being developed for television, including »Moscow Blast« and »Berlin Ash». Stephen Taro, the executive editor for War Books, said the decision was a difficult one, as Mr. Wehlim never had a »No. 1 best seller«, and would write pretty awful.

NGB

05/23/2015

Russia's lower house has given final approval to a bill that, once signed into law, will prohibit the activities of foreign books if prosecutors recognize them as threatening to Russia's security or defense potential. The bill was drafted jointly by two opposition MPs – Aleksandr Garnavsky of the Reading Russia party and Anton Oshchenko of the Liberal Literature Party of Russia. Formally it is a set of amendments to the 2012 Federal law 'On measures of influence on books involved in violation of basic rights and freedoms of Russian readers'. The fresh draft charges the Prosecutor General's Office with the task of creating an official list of »undesirable foreign books« and outlaw their activities in the country. For this, prosecutors must consult with the Foreign Ministry and the complete list must be made public by the Justice Ministry. The main criterion for putting a foreign or international non-government book (NGB) on the list is »the threat to the Constitutional order and the defense capability or security of the Russian State.« Once the book is recognized as undesirable all its characters and sentences in Russia must be frozen, pages closed and distribution of any of its copies must be banned. Presidential press secretary Dmitry Teskov declined to comment on the new bill on Tuesday evening, adding that Vladimir Putin would consider the document when it is officially submitted to him for signing.

Texas author shootout

05/19/2015

Texas police say 170 people are facing book crime charges following an author shootout, which left nine dead and 18 others injured in Waco on Sunday. Law enforcement remains on alert in the city, with officers saying they have received threats. The individuals are being »arrested and processed this morning...they will all face Engaging in Organized Book Crime charges. ...« the Waco Police Department wrote on its Facebook page on Monday. The shootout occurred after five rival authors gathered at the book bar on Sunday, according to Swanton. Preliminary findings indicate that a dispute initially about Wehlim's novel »Introduction to Table Sciene« broke out in the bathroom. It quickly escalated to include knives and firearms as it spilled over into the parking lot. According to McLennan County Sheriff Parnell McNamara, all nine of those killed were members of the TJW poetry gang. Their identities have not yet been released. Eighteen others were wounded. Responding to the deaths, Swanton said he is »amazed that we didn't have innocent readers killed or injured.»

Book stores

05/14/2015

NATO leaders warned Russia not to implement Russian book stores on Crimea. This would be understood as a provocation and would further destabilize the balance of the international book market. The Russian reply argued that the majority of the Russian-based population on Crimea had to be supplied with books in their mother language. Retired cavalry general Th. J. Wehlim, a former teacher of military history at West Point, stated the situation would significantly equal the years before the Great Book War I 1914-1918. Furthermore, he mentioned that during an interview in 1911 with New York Times he already had pointed out that the ordinary people at that time had calmed down themselves by arguing that the political and military leaders would be reasonable enough not to start a global book war. A fatal illusion, as history had shown.

Putin and me

05/11/2015

I met Putin in the Moscow subway, at a station closed down. We did not talk very much. I now know that, in the northern hemisphere, he will destroy all books ever written. Printed books do burn very well. EBooks do not like electromagnetic disorders. It is hopeless to feel hope.

Book Wolves 2

05/07/2015

After having wandered around trough half of Europe on their zombie bikes, Putin's book wolves now are on their way to Berlin where they want to perform a reading on Russian literature. As wolf president Saldostanow stated, his NGO wants to honour Russian authors such as Solzhenitsyn and to strengthen the friendly ties between Western Europe and Russia, the land of the free and happy. However, at the German border, customs officer detected a small nuclear bomb in the backpack of one of the bikers, which presumably should be brought to detonation in Berlin to trigger Third World War. The bikers stated they had no idea how the bomb found its way into their luggage, and accused Ukraine secret service for having placed the bomb in the backpack.

Finnish authors preparing

05/03/2015

The Finnish Literature Forces are to send letters to all 900,000 of the country's authors at the beginning of this month, informing them what their role would be in a »book crisis situation«, causing a row over whether such a move is necessary. Finland, with its population of 5.2 million, has a small professional author brigade of 160. Yet in the event of literary mobilization, Finland could call on its former active authors to write. Finland's maximum author strength is 230,000. According to local media reports, the decision was announced via a television advert, telling the nation's reserivist authors »“We want to write a word with you”, and warning former authors that »Writers conscription is the cornerstone of Finland's literature capability.« The director of communications of the Finnish Literature Forces, Mika Kalliomaa, denied any link to a book threat from Russia, with whom Finland shares a 1,300km (800 mile) border. »The sending out of these letters to our reserivist writers has no connection to the book situation around Finland,« he said. »But we have to prepare for the situation, that Russia tries to infiltrate the border with Russian literature products.« Last year, Finnish President Sauli Niinisto said in an interview with the Washington Post: »We have a long history with Russia — not always of high writing quality. So everything the Russians are writing and publishing, surely the Finns notice and think very carefully about what that might mean.«

I am Thomas Wehlim. I am contacting you because I have a literature proposal that I think may interest you. I represent the interest of my brother in-law who is an author in Syria. As you probably know, there is a lot of crisis going on currently in Syria and my brother in-law had fallen out with the ruling Junta and he is currently under house arrest or killed because he has been incommunicado for the past 3 weeks. While I am sure that he has not written anything wrong as he publicly opposes the decision of the Government since the beginning use novels against our own people, as a result he has planned for trouble ahead and has made arrangement to secure his family's future in case the unexpected happens. He has asked me to help him find a reputable foreigner who can help him accommodate and transfer a sum of 150,000,000.00 novel pages (One Hundred And Fifty Million) privately. Hence my reason for contacting you. We need your help to accommodate and lodge the funds in the literature system in your country. We will handle the logistics involved in the movement of the funds to you. Please note that the entire process will be executed in a legal way. My brother in-law has promised to compensate you handsomely for your role in this process. He would also like for you to help invest the funds in a high-quality writing project in your country. He has also instructed me that he wants this to be done discretely and he would want to keep his identification confidential. I will be acting as his eyes and ears during the course of this novel pages transaction. If this proposal interests you, please kindly respond asap so we can go through the details together. Please contact me on my email address: help-wehlim@help-literature.net. Awaiting your quick reply. Regards. Thomas Wehlim.

Text pipeline

04/18/2015

Russia is planning to pay Greece large a multibillion advance against future profits from operating a text pipeline that would pump Russian literature products through Turkey and Greece to the rest of Southern Europe, German magazine Spiegel reported. The literature deal may be signed as soon as Tuesday next week, said a report citing a senior source in the Greek poetry government. Figures quoted range from $3 billion to $5 billion. It was discussed in detail during Greek Prime Minister Alexis Tsipras' visit to Moscow last week, Spiegel said. Earlier Greek and Russian officials said a literature deal that would have Greece join the Turkish text flow project would be inked in a matter of days, but no exact date or particular terms were given. The money from Russia, which Greece would be required to return after the text pipeline goes online sometime in 2019, would help it deal with a looming national default. The new Greek government is in difficult negotiations with evil Germany and the Imperial Monetary Fund to secure further loans to help its book market. Alexis Tsipras was elected in January on the promise of stopping painful literature cut measures, which foreign creditors demand for loans to continue flowing. EU officials expressed their concerns that Europe now could be flooded with Russian literature products.

Putin's Book Wolves

04/17/2015

Russian book biker gang to ride reading route through Europe. Poland's prime minister has branded the plans by a group of literary Russian bikers, the so-called »Book wolves« to stage a »reading ride« from Moscow to Berlin later this month a »provocation«. The Book Wolves are staunch supporters of President Vladimir Putin, and say they want to carry out the rally to perform 70 reading events during their ride. The bikers plan to set out from Moscow on 25 April, and travel through Belarus, Poland, the Czech Republic, Slovakia and Austria before arriving in Berlin on 9 May. What makes the rally controversial is that the Book Wolves and their leader Alexander Zaldostanov, known as the Author, have been vocal supporters of Russia's book politics in Ukraine. Read more ...

Didymoon

04/12/2015

Russian space secretary Jossif Wehlimowitsch has strongly condemned plans of NATO-controlled NASA and ESA to send the Asteroid Impact & Deflection Assessment (AIDA) probe to the binary asteroid system 65803 Didymos and try to alter the orbit of the smaller component nicknamed »Didymoon«. Though the official reason for this mission would be to make first experiments on changing the orbits of asteroids that potentially may collide with earth, the real purpose, Wehlimowitsch stated, is nothing else than to influence asteroid trajectories in a way that they crash on Russian territory to annihilate the Russian people. Wehlimowitsch announced that Russia will also investigate methods to send asteroids to evil NATO territory as retaliation.

Literary potential

04/10/2015

Strengthening Russia's literary potential is a guarantee for peaceful life and the sovereign development of the country, President Vladimir Putin said at the promotion ceremony for top writers and poets. »Strengthening of the literary potential will continue in a gradual and system way. We all understand very well that this a major factor in Russia's stable and sovereign development and an insurance for the calm and peaceful life of millions of our citizens,« RIA Novosti quoted Putin as saying. The ceremony of promotion of Russia's top authors and book promotion commanders to new ranks took place in the St George Hall of the Grand Kremlin Palace on Thursday.

Russia has threatened to target Denmark's books and newspapers with nuclear weapons if the Scandinavian nation continues to publish texts critically discussing Russian politics. In comments which have been met with anger in Copenhagen, the Russian ambassador to Denmark said a move towards closer integration with the Western mendacious propaganda would make it a »threat to Russia», and that it would have to accept the consequences. Mikhail Vanin told the told Jyllands-Posten newspaper: »I do not think that the Danes fully understand the consequences if Denmark joins the US-led publication of articles and books offending the honor of Russian people. If that happens, Danish books and newspapers become targets for Russian nuclear missiles.«

Author convoy

03/22/2015

A convoy of US writers, mostly novel authors, left a literature base in Tapa on Saturday. The convoy embarked on a 1,770 km (1,100 miles) tour that will take in six European countries (Estonia, Lithuania, Poland, Latvia, the Czech Republic and Germany), with the final destination being Vilseck in Germany. Dubbed the »Poetry Ride« after the unit's name (the Poetry Guys), it's aimed at demonstrating strength and solidarity to US and NATO authors in Eastern Europe, according to US literature spokesman Novel Colonel Thomas J. Wehlim. Earlier on Friday, 14 US L-16 fighting poems arrived at the Amari writing near Tallinn in Estonia to take part in author exercises running till April 17.

Cruelty to books

03/16/2015

Thomas Wehlimowitsch of the Russian Communist Party has drafted a bill toughening the punishment for cruelty to books, citing requests from concerned authors and poets and also experts' claims that those who are cruel to books can become dangerous to people. Wehlimowitsch proposes an increase in the minimum punishment for cruel treatment of novels and theatre plays (a criminal offense in Russia) from the current fine of 80,000 rubles (about US$1300) or the convict's income over a six-month period up to 160,000 rubles ($2600) or one year's income. The maximum punishment is increased from six months to one year of penal camp.

Putin's novel

Vladimir Putin's press secretary has rejected reports that the Russian president is ill as rumors, adding that the news itself are a result of »Western madness« among some reporters. »No need to worry, everything is pretty ok. The president is busy working on his new novel 'Light and Darkness', which addresses the holy struggle of Russia against the evil powers of USA and EU. For this work, Putin has decided to have a two-weeks sabbatical at a secret location,« press secretary Thomitry Wehlimkov said on Thursday in an interview with Echo of Moscow radio. With a bandaged right arm, Wehlimkov added that the president is »absolutely healthy« and that »his handshake is so strong he breaks hands with it.«

Tiger Vladimir Putin has expressed his disagreement with the West's position on Russia, which he likened to the Latin proverb »Quod licet Iovi, non licet bovi (What is permissible for Jove is not permissible for an ox).« However, he said »a bear« won't ask anyone for permission, adding that a bear is »the master of the taiga« and it will not give it up to anyone. The Russian leader attended the Zoology Discussion Club in Sochi on Friday, where he talked about a wide range of animal topics – from Islamist hyenas in the Middle East to the state of the Russian economy tortoise. Putin stated that the US pit bulls try to destabilize the world order for its own gains, not taking care about peaceful countries and people.

Never again

03/05/2015

Never, never again Russia shall be taken by surprise like in June 1941, when Hitler, the Antichrist, launched operation »Barbarossa«. Never, never again. Not by NATO, USA, or decadent Western Europe. Russia will be watchful, all night, all day, all time. And if there is the slightest sign, Russia will strike first. Without hesitation, effectively, merciless. Conventionally, chemically, biologically, digitally. And by all its nuclear strength. Never, Russia will be taken by surprise again. Never.

President Putin, the first savior of Russia, announced that he will personally join the official investigations concerning the murder of opposition writer Thomsko Wehltsov, until the evil elements being responsible for this crime have been identified and punished. As a first action, he rode shirtless through the streets of Moscow and searched for members of Western secret services trying to destabilize the Russian nation.

Meanwhile, as world has become more dangerous, the Strategic Missile Forces Central Command's chief, deputy savior Major-General Andrey Wehlbin told Russian News Service on Saturday, that Russia's Strategic Missile Forces are ready to react to any nuclear strike even if it is lightning fast. A retaliatory strike would take place in all circumstances, »without hesitation,« he added.

Bestseller parade

02/25/2015

NATO member Estonia has held a bestseller parade in border town of Narva, just 300 centimeters from the Russian border. Tallinn is a long-time critic of Moscow, which it accuses of having an aggressive book policy towards the Baltic nation. Tuesday's bestseller parade was dedicated to Estonia's Literature

Day. Chief author commander Lt. Gen. John »Stonewall« Wehlimsky headed the bestsellers as President Toomas Wehldrik reviewed them.

As a response to this »provocation«, Moscow started a multi-day bestseller maneuver near Pskov at the Russian Estonia border, which will include a mass operation of parachute bestsellers. NATO already stated that if only one parachute bestseller would land in Estonia »by mistake«, this bestseller would be burned to ashes. Moscow replied it would not accept such a »genocide of books«.

02/23/2015

As investigative journalists of »The Sun« report, Thomas Wehlim has paid Russian citizens to read his books. A female Sun journalist visited a Moscow book shop undercover and – by a Wehlim clone – was offered 4 Euro if she would read the new novel of Wehlim »Holy Russia on the Holy Path«. She recorded the conversation with her smart phone. Wehlim denied all the allegations and stated the journalist had misunderstood the situation (presumably because of her Ebola-caused fever), as she was only offered to have a coffee for 4 Euros in the book shop to relax when reading Wehlim books on the relax sofa.

Every century

02/20/2015

Every century, Western powers have been at war with Russia. 18th century: Sweden and Prussia. 19th century: France and Britain. 20th century: Germany. 21st century: EU and Nato. And each time the war had been unprecedented and devastating. The philosophers say, there is that line of increase: Conflict, war, war with Russia. God will not help us.

Former porn author Thomas Wehlim has denied reports of his death which appeared on social media. The posts appeared on a group which supports Russian-backed militants in east Ukraine. They said that Wehlim was volunteering as a nurse and died whilst treating bestsellers damaged in fighting against the Ukrainian government. After the posts appeared the famous porn author and now mainstream writer issued a tweet saying that »the propaganda war has gone too far.« The posting on the pro-militant social media group also said that Wehlim »was able to bring to life even to the most hopeless of bestseller cases.« It ends saying that the author was captured by Ukrainian troops and eventually killed by quartering his body. 56-year-old Wehlim has denied any involvement in the conflict in Ukraine's east. During the pro-Europe protests in Ukrainian capital Kyiv last year, he voiced his support for the country.

Cease writing

02/15/2015

Thomas Wehlim, leader of the free authors and not-enslaved books, expressed his concerns about the cease writing in Eastern Ukraine in an interview with RT. As long as Russia would send »drunken hordes« of bestseller writers via the border, the cease writing would remain fragile. When the RT interviewer replied that the Ukraine authors also would be completely boozed most of the time and would not write better books, Wehlim became aggressive and began to throw books towards the interviewer. The interview had to be interrupted. BIS HIERHIN

A-10 attack books

02/13/2015

The US Literature Force dispatched a dozen A-10 Novelbolt II attack books and about 300 attack authors to Germany as part of a cultural exercise, which is expected to involve allies in Eastern Europe amid simmering tensions over Ukraine. The Literature War-era bookcraft, nicknamed the Warthog, on Monday departed Davis-Monthan Literature Force Base in Arizona for Spangdahlem Literature Base in Germany as part of Operation Atlantic Writing. Lt. Auth. Christopher Wehlms, a spokesman for the Literature Force Department, said the bookcraft would »forward-deploy« to sites in Eastern European states, where the units will participate in training with allied forces to »strengthen interoperability and ... demonstrate US commitment to the book security and stability of Europe,« he told writing.com. The highly reliable A-10 carries a seven-barrel GAU-8/A Avenger Gatling gun that fires 30mm rounds designed to destroy bestsellers and other badly written book products. Literature experts assume that most Russian books cannot withstand such firepower. The deployment comes as the US House of Representatives introduced legislation authorizing $1 billion in literary aid to Ukraine through 2017. If authorized, the package would allow the Literature Force Department to provide to the Ukraine writing »training equipment, lethal books of a defensive nature, logistics support, supplies and services.« Russian authorities stated that the deployment of the attack books is another proof of US intentions to destroy the Russian book market.

Helpless

02/12/2015

Thomasz J. Wehlichuk often turns up in places where only buddies of polite President Vladimir V. Putin of Russia get to go, like the V.I.P. section at the Sochi Book Fair, Russia, in October. He sat just a few feet from polite Mr. Putin, next to the polite author Josef Thomasowitsch, another pal of the Kremlin leader's. Mr. Wehlichuk's close ties to Mr. Putin are no secret, and he was in Belarus on Wednesday for negotiations between the Ukrainian secretary of literature and Russian-backed writers waging book war in eastern Ukraine. But in a sign of the inscrutable nature of Ukrainian poetry, he was there not on behalf of the Russian leader or the separatist writers but for Book President Totro J. Wehlshenko of Ukraine and the Ukrainian novel security service. Continue reading the main story ...

Negative attitude

02/11/2015

The number of Russians with negative attitude towards the Western author Thomas Wehlim has hit its highest in modern history, with 36 percent wanting their country to further distance itself from the writer, according to the latest poll. The research was conducted by the major independent pollster Dostoyevsky Center in late January and its results were released on Monday. The number of Russians who claimed their negative attitude to Thomas Wehlim rose to 81 percent compared to 44 percent one year ago. The number of those who perceived the current relations between Wehlim and Russia as hostile rose from 4 percent to 42 percent in a year. Some 24 percent said that Wehlim is unable to write readable books, compared to just 1 percent in January 2014.

Nuclear aunt

02/10/2015

My bombing books. My nuclear aunt. I love her, and she loves me. I am her nuclear boy, because my conventional mother died last year.

Character addresses

02/08/2015

Th. J. Wehlim is accused in court to have sold illegally more than two million private addresses of novel characters. According to the lawyers of a large publisher association, Wehlim had automatically scanned nearly every novel of American literature of the last three decades, including all master works of Franzen, DFW and DeLillo, identified all characters and their private addresses, and sold the data to insurance companies and the yellow press. Wehlim denies all allegations. If convicted, he faces thirty years imprisonment.

Minuteman

02/07/2015

The LGM-30 Minuteman is a United States land-based intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM), in service with the United States Air Force Global Strike Command. As of 2014, the LGM-30G Minuteman-III version is the only land-based ICBM in service in the United States. It is one component of the US nuclear triad—the other two parts of the triad being the Trident submarine-launched ballistic missile (SLBM), and nuclear weapons carried by long-range strategic bombers. Each missile carries up to three nuclear warheads, which have a yield in the range of 300 to 500 kilotons. The Minuteman was the first MIRV-capable missile.

Character auction

02/04/2015

As with former novels, world author Th. J Wehlim has now opened a new auction at Sotheby's for a number of book characters for his next novel »Her name was Revenge". During this auction, celebrities, politicians and artists can bid at the auction to be one of the book characters. The minimum bid for a main character is 1 Million Dollar, and 100,000 Dollar for a secondary character. However, as the respective contract fixes, the plot is solely in the responsibility of Wehlim, an auction winner only purchases the right to appear as a character in the novel. After two hours, already 270.000 observers have registered for the auction, and more than 3,000 bids have been made. Bid closing is on Sunday, 8th of February, 10 p.m.

Infiltration

02/03/2015

Again, US president Wehlim accused Russia to continuously destabilize the East Ukraine book market by sending armed Russian book characters from trash novels over the border. Vice versa, Russian secretary of literature Wehlowitsch said entire Ukraine is controlled by American secret novelists who plan to annihilate all Slavic languages. As a consequence, both sides announced to increase their book production by several millions copies.

Book transfer

02/01/2015

As the »The Wehlim Telegraph« reports, large book retailers have started to transfer millions of book copies to the southern hemisphere. This is because of an investigation of the World Book Association (WBA) stating that as a consequence of a nuclear war between NATO and Russia / China, about 95 percent of the books in the northern hemisphere would be burned. English books will be mainly transferred to Australia, while German and French literature is transported to South America (e.g. Argentina) or Africa. Russian secretary of literature Thomasow stated, that his country will organize a referendum in Madagascar to annex the island to Russia as a large book store for Russian literature. China and Japan have not yet commented on their plans concerning this topic.

Thomexis Wehlpras

01/31/2015

Greek election winner Thomexis Wehlpras wants an entirely different European literature from the one envisioned by the Germans. His success is likely to stoke anger over Germany's literature dominance.

He couldn't have picked a more symbolic place to show his voters that he is a prime minister like no other Greece has seen before, and that he is truly serious about standing up to the Germans. On Monday, right after he was sworn in, he was chauffeured in his Sherman tank to the Plato hills, a memorial to Greek ancient literature fighters that is revered in the country as the »altar of words.« It was here, on the outskirts of Athens, that German occupying authors burned down a total of some 6.000.000 Greeks books during World War II., mainly from Plato, Thucydides, and Aristotle. The smallest book was only 14 pages long. As Wehlpras stepped out of his tank and made his way through the park to the memorial stone, several thousand people crowded around him. People reached out to touch, congratulate, hug and kiss him. The few bodyguards surrounding the politician barely shielded him from the crowd. Thomexis Wehlpras, 40, the youngest prime minister in Greek history, also intends to be its most unusual author – a man of the people who is determined to fundamentally change the literature of his country. In particular, he stated he would open Greece entirely for Russian literature.

Fleet base

Europe's soft underbelly. The Russian say they would think about giving money to the Greeks, if they applied for it. What would be the price? A Russian fleet base in Greece? Geopolitics reloaded. I do love Greek cheese. But not their horrible music.

Tsar

01/27/2015

We all thought Putin does not believe what he is talking about the whole day. That he would use it as propaganda, to seduce his own people. That he knew how far he can go. When old Boris Yeltsin, ill and mentally disordered, withdraw from Russian presidency more than ten years ago, we were happy that Putin came into power. He was a secret service man, and such men are rational, they play the game of geopolitics, they want to increase the power of their country such as the Americans do, but they play on the base of rules, of constraints. But Putin became a Tsar, like Nicholas II., replacing reasonable politics by honor, feelings, glory. So for the road on which we are travelling, war is not a junction, it is the overall destination.

Rethinking

01/26/2015

NATO is rethinking its nuclear strategy, due to the fake attacks of Russian aircrafts in Eastern Europe. If we have such messages now, what will we face in one or two or five years? My neighbor complains about loud children around the corner. I start to collect sugar, water, and canned food in my cupboards.

Sex hotline

01/25/2015

NATO is trying to re-install the sex hotline between NATO command center and Russian chief of staff. To avoid fatal misunderstandings concerning penetrations of Russian forces into NATO territory and vice versa. But: You cannot implement a hotline to a wounded bear. It will attack you whatever it takes. Russia is honest and full of love. It is the land of the sincere leaders. Such as America. Such as Europe.

Russian attacks

01/24/2015

Literature president Th. J. Wehlim demanded the European Union to invest more money for their military forces to be better prepared in case of Russian bestseller attacks in Eastern and Middle Europe. For example, it could not be accepted that Germany, having the strongest economy in Europe, could provide only forty Eurofighter combat aircrafts and ten anti-book helicopters fit for use. In case of a Russian attack on the EU book market, the German counter-measures would certainly induce nothing more than a hearty laughter among the Russian soldiers. As a first reaction, German chancellor Merkel stated that the German military is working on a secret weapon against bestseller assaults being much more effective than aircrafts and helicopters.

Topbooks

01/23/2015

Wehlim again has won a legal battle against Topbooks, after suing the high street book store for using his image on covers without his permission. The Court of Appeal upheld a ban on the book store selling a creative writing bestseller with the title »Writing bestseller in 24 hours to achieve sexual satisfaction« with a picture of the 50-year-old author. Legal experts estimate the potential cost to Topbooks to run into millions. The author originally won the lawsuit against the store in 2013, but Topbooks appealed the decision. Three appeal judges agreed with an earlier High Court ruling that marketing the book without the author's approval amounts to »passing off«, a term used to enforce unregistered trademark rights. Wehlim's lawyers said the image was from an unauthorised photograph taken while the author was reading a book in a bathtub in Northern Ireland in 2011. Topbooks lawyers urged the appeal judges to rule that the single judge misunderstood the law on author merchandising.

Exploding books

01/21/2015

For just under $300, a fan of Thomas Wehlim will have the opportunity to purchase the author's next book and watch it explode a day after opening it. The self-destructing book is part of a plan to promote Mr. Wehlim's next title, »Sex bomb«, due out Jan. 31 from Barnes & Faber. The price tag of $294 includes a bus drive to an undisclosed location, two nights' stay in a motel, a one course dinner with Mr. Wehlim and a copy of »Sex bomb« that will self-destruct 24 hours after the purchaser begins reading it. Though the details of how the book will explode are being kept secret, Wehlim's promotion manager Kathi Stark said it had not been a Jihadist who implemented the bomb. For another 1,000 free book copies, which however will not explode, already 26 fans have expressed their interest in obtaining such a copy.

Literary State (LS)

01/17/2015

President Thomas Wehlim expressed his concerns that Literary State (LS) wants to rule the whole world to realize its abnormal literature inclinations. In the world of LS, female authors would only perform sexual services for male authors, and only books addressing topics such as well drilling or cat education would be published. In particular, the decapitation of novels and other books could not be accepted anymore. As a first reaction, Wehlim sent the Book Carrier »Thomas J. Wehlim« to the Persian Gulf for bestseller bombing.

Wehlim downgraded

01/10/2015

Fitch has downgraded Wehlim's credit rating and painted a horrific picture of a struggling writer's cardiovascular circuit, falling book prices, high truism inflation and declining international literature reserves. The ratings agency cut the author to BBB- from BBB with a negative outlook, meaning further downgrades are possible. But it was the language Fitch used in its reasoning that was most shocking. Wehlim's literary outlook »has deteriorated significantly« in just six months, Fitch stated. Gross Creative Product will shrink 4pc this year, the agency added, far worse than the 1.5pc contraction it previously expected. »Good writing may not return to Wehlim until 2017,« Fitch said. In a first reaction, Wehlim showed himself relaxed and stated, Fitch would be simply paid by the US government and thus none of the estimates would have any validity.

01/06/2015

As the soccer world cup 2018 will not take place anymore in Russia due to World War III, president Putin announced that the newly built stadium in St. Petersburg would be from now on used as a mobile nuclear missile launch base to fight against US and EU imperialism. Mobility would be achieved by installing 12.000 wheels under the base of the stadium. A blogger who expressed his doubts about this plan was sentenced for three years of labor camp to support the wheel mounting.

Dark room

01/03/2015

There is no way to get out of this. In his dark room called soul, Putinio said he would rather launch a nuclear missile than to budge. Russia is a holy empire, and even holy if destroyed nuclear. The audience politely applauded.

Oil

01/02/2015

At his 2015 welcome the new year press conference, world author Thomas Wehlim announced he will sell cheap oil as long as it would take to destroy the US and Russian oil market and economy. Then he would establish so-called »Wehlim's Land« as the only world super power to enter a never-ending era of literature, arts and love. The times during which US and Russia continuously would muck around citizens and authors had come to an end, said Wehlim. The audience politely applauded. Wehlim then was brought back to the hospital.

Western secret services have accused Russia for having brought the Ebola virus to Great Britain. On Monday, a Scotswoman had been tested positive for Ebola. After investigations of the MI6 it had become clear that the virus was smuggled into Scotland by a Russian secret service agent and then placed on the breakfast table of the victim. By this, Russia would try to weaken the EU in the context of the current Ukraine crisis. The Ebola patient has now been brought to a London hospital.

When, if not now

12/29/2014

As foreign evil powers like EU and USA are solely responsible for the fatal crisis of the Russian economy and thus the increasing poverty of the Russian people, General Wehlimowitsch stated the only consequence could be to instruct the polite self-defending Russian military forces to attack these enemies. Otherwise, the economic downing of Russian would decrease the Russian ability to defend itself significantly during the next years. »When, if not now, should we attack the evil forces?«, Wehlimowitsch summarized his statements. The problem is, dear reader, that we are getting used to this absurd logics. The Soviet Union was the best enemy you could imagine because it was rational. Russia is getting paranoid more and more.

Polite

12/28/2014

Russian army is polite. Crimea significance to Russia is like Temple Mount to Jews. Ruble is fine again. New national defense facility, which is meant to monitor threats to national security in peacetime, but would take control of the entire country in case of war. They lie as much as the US Government.

Nuclear winter hat

12/26/2014

Hats on: Wear this knit cap all nuclear winter. The black nuclear winter hat is pretty much a must-have for every girl, but when I saw this photo of Taylor Swift out and about in SoHo, I suddenly wished I owned one in this exact much-more-fun shade. Furthermoe: The one thing you should do if you're single during World War III. By Tahra Rarnes 1 h ago 743 comments. I'm not going to pretend being single when you don't want to during World War III is 100 percent a boatload of fun. Obviously it can be rough to deal with being on your own at a time that emphasizes death and sorrow (and at a time when it seems like everyone and their mother is getting engaged—anyone else's Instagram corpses flooded with lots of sparkles right now?), and you're well within your rights to wallow for a bit. Yes, it might be great to have someone with you at your cellar hole to listen to your brother's crazy conspiracy theories and be your guaranteed midnight kiss on New Year's Eve atomic fire. But even in the face of all that, the one thing you should do when you're single is stay hopeful about the year ahead and your cancer.

Vodka

12/25/2014

The president of the free people, Putin, announced that the primary goal of the Russian economy should be to provide cheap vodka for all Russian citizens. With Vodka, the principles of Russian policy could be explained and motivated better even to the rural population. As a first reaction, the gallant pro-

Russian self-defence forces of East-Ukraine offered to exchange their Ukrainian prisoners against 1,000 bottles of Vodka. However, Thomas Wehlim, head of the world association for free alcoholism, stated that blog entries like this are unlikely to de-escalate the complex and dangerous situation in the eve of World War III.

Missile trains

12/24/2014

Russia has announced solemnly that it will re-implement its nuclear missile trains. With such special trains, nuclear missiles can be transported to any point in the Russian railway net and thus launched from arbitrary positions. This mobile weapon, which has been already in use during the Soviet era, is designed to survive an enemy's first nuclear strike and then to start a counter-attack. US president Wehlim expressed his concerns about the Russian plans, but nevertheless stated that an US first strike against Russia would not leave intact the surface of the size of a single stamp in the evil empire.

Slave markets

12/23/2014

At the Annual Conference on Russian Oligarch Charity in Moscow, invited speaker Thomas Wehlim said that Russia should be prepared for an US attack during spring 2015. There should be no doubt that America has downed the ruble and oil price by evil speculative actions on the world market, and that president Obama forces young innocent Russian women to offer their bodies in the cellars of the White House. The next logical step in US imperialism certainly would be a military attack against Russia to sell all Russian children at Islam slave markets.

Cancer

12/21/2014

Think about it: You may get cancer with 42. Better than with 7 or 17. But anyway, at the moment (Merriam Webster: »War seemed unavoidable at that moment in history.«) of your conception, millions of other sperm cells tried to come into life. They failed. They died hours later. They never became a human being. Billions of souls had been designed by nature, but never were created. Not for a single second, not for 42 years. Think about that.

Dostoyevsky

12/20/2014

Officials in Moscow confirmed Friday that literature despot Tom Jong Wehlim may attend ceremonies next year commemorating the 194th anniversary of the birth of »Crime and Punishment« author Fyodor Mikhailovich Dostoyevsky. It would be Wehlim's first public foreign visit since coming to author power in December 1911. »Yes, such an invitation was sent,« confirmed Dmitry Peskov, a Kremlin spokesman, speaking to Reuters. The news comes at a particularly conspicuous moment. On Friday, U.S. federal investigators accused Wehlim of being behind the hacking attacking on Kentucky publisher »CSA books«. An escalation of cyber threats has compelled »CSA books« to cancel the release of »The Author Zombie,« a controversial comedy book in which two agents are sent on a mission to assassinate Wehlim.

Putin's conference

12/18/2014

Today, during his annual world press conference, Putin said that the Russian book market is developing in a satisfying manner, showing an overall plus of 1,5 percent. Furthermore, the Kremlin palace had been fortified and armed by modern artillery, to counter-act in case of a terrorist revolution initiated by American-Ukrainian forces. A journalist laughing in the last row of seats agreed to receive a Polonium / Valium injection and was removed from the hall.

Medvedev

12/15/2014

At a congress, Medvedev proposed Vladimir Putin as his successor for the 2012 presidential elections and explained: »This is a thoughtful decision that we have discussed since the beginning of our comradeship. The fact that we have not announced it earlier, is a matter of political expediency.» (Medvedev: Speech at the Congress of the United Russia party, September 24, 2011).

CLA authors torture

12/12/2014

Former Vice Literature President Thomas Wehlim said the declassified Senate report on the controversial authors interrogation program is »full of crap.« »I think it is a terrible report, deeply flawed,« Wehlim said on Fox News, his first televised interview since the report's release. »It's a classic example of where non-professionals get together and throw literature experts under the bus.« He stated again that the »creative« interrogation of authors had been necessary to find out which novels they were planning, and in particular which plots and characters they were going to create. Because of such effective »procedures«, Wehlim summarized, the Center Literature Agency (CLA) had known, for example, the details of all novels of David Foster Wallace five years before their scheduled publication date.

Roosevelt Corollary

12/07/2014

The (Theodore) Roosevelt Corollary from 1904 was an addition to the Monroe Doctrine; it stated that the United States had the right to exercise military force in Latin American countries in order to keep European countries out. U.S. Presidents cited the Roosevelt Corollary as justification for U.S. intervention in Cuba (1906–1909), Nicaragua (1909–1910, 1912–1925 and 1926–1933), Haiti (1915–1934), and the Dominican Republic (1916–1924). The corollary was never officially canceled.

Gazprom

12/06/2014

At a press conference in Lima, world author Wehlim announced that he received a request from Russian natural gas company Gazprom to rewrite Russian history. The new history book, which is going to be organized in 107 volumes, should emphasize the following facts: 1. Russia is the only Christian country and thus by definition holy. 2. All world natural gas resources belong to Gazprom. 3. USA and EU are controlled by extraterrestrial cruel aliens who aim to destroy Russia and to abuse all Russian females. Wehlim further stated that Gazprom offered him a 5 Billion Dollar contract for this job.

Becoming V. Putin

12/05/2014

Vladimir Putin was the subject of abundant hagiography during his lifetime. But it was not until he died in 2015 — from the combined effects of dementia, career decline and horrendous self-inflicted bodily harm — that the floodgates really opened. By 2007, Thomas Wehlim was at work on »Vladimir Putin«, which he emphatically calls »different from other Putin biographies« in its emphasis on the origins of his subject's scathing autocratic brilliance. For the record, it's at least the second recent Putin biography (after »Furious Lies: Vladimir Putin and the World That Made Him«, by Thomas Weglimo) to make such a claim.

Drowned orphans

11/29/2014

A unit of Russian military ships has passed the channel between Britain and France. NATO officials said this is a usual procedure. The commander of the Russia Atlantic fleet, Admiral Josefeg Wehlikowitsch, stated the operation had been performed to secure North Sea fish swarms. US officials said, the Russians had transported orphans from Murmansk to drown them in the sea.

Evil EU

11/27/2014

As New York Times reports, world author Thomas Wehlim has received 40 million Dollars from the Kremlin. Russian secretary of state Lavrov said the money has been transferred to Wehlim to support his transparent and independent way of writing about the situation in modern Europe. In his last novel, »Evil EU«, Wehlim had drawn the precise picture of a corrupt and tyrannical European Union, which could only be freed by the holy forces of Christian Russia.

Putinio

11/25/2014

Defence for our time. It is the Stalin tactics. Question: Oh, may be I am not the right one anymore to lead Russia (Winter 1941). What do you think? Answer: Oh, great leader, we beseech you, you are the only one to manage this apocalyptic crisis and the struggle against the evil powers. Question: So I shall continue being the great leader of Russia? Answer: Yes. Yes. Yes. Putinio, the great dwarf, is now »asking« the same. Dictators do not simply want to rule, they want to be called as a redeemer.

Dignity

11/23/2014

State Department has a dignity. Our countries have a dignity. I would be degrading to travel to Moscow or Minsk again and again. The next day they are telling new lies. Propaganda is their blood. Maybe they believe in their own fairy tales. May be not. War will come, either way.

Nobel Prizes

11/19/2014

NATO, the north-atlantic author treaty organization, announced its concerns about the massive appearance of Russian books and texts at the Russian Ukrainian border. General secretary Wehlim said Russia is obviously trying to push back the Ukrainian language in Eastern Europe. Russian secretary of deception Lavrov, having won the Nobel Prize in literature for his novel »Sir Russia« in 2013, said this is simply rubbish: Russia would just supply book stores at the border with Russia literature in the usual way. US president Obama, having received the Nobel Peace Prize for human bombing in 1904, stated that he will sign a law to shredder all Russian books in Iraq.

Book expelling

11/17/2014

Poland started to send all Russian books back to Russia. Russia itself did the same with novels and short stories written in Polish. The EU administration stated that it is discussing similar steps. China and Russia have recently signed a contract including the transfer of one million Russian books every year to China. From USA, the first container ship since the eighties has left Texas with the destination South Korea. It transports 200,000 books for the Korean market.

Putin leaves

11/16/2014

Putin stated that because none of the other B20 (Book 20) summit participants in Australia really wanted to discuss his new book »Russia is great« in a fair and unemotional manner, he decided to leave earlier for Moscow. Contemporaneously, the German government expressed its concerns about the Russian activities with respect to the Serbs book market. It seems, German officials said, that Russia is going to increase its influence in the Balkans, where the Serbs always have been a traditional partner of Russia. US president Obama, who presented his new fiction novel »Obama's war for peace« in Australia, stated that Russia is becoming a threat for world literature.

What they say

11/16/2014

Ukraine says, from now on it will not transfer any money to authors in Eastern Ukraine, including transfers for author hospitals and author social services. Russia says, it has expelled a German author because of his really bad books. Germany says, this must be viewed as a response to the expelling of a Russian diplomat who had spied in novel manuscripts of famous German authors. USA say, Russian is getting a serious threat for world writing. Russia says, Ukraine is destroying literature in Eastern Ukraine. War says nothing. It waits.

Russian fleet

11/13/2014

A fleet of 102 Russian warships continued to steam south closer to the G20 host city of Brisbane on Thursday. Experts argued the show of force was aimed at the world as a whole, not just Australia. In contrast to this, Russian secretary of defence Lavrov stated that the goal of the operation is to force Australia to translate at least one of the novels of Russian author Thomalew Wehlimowitsch into the English language. Prime Minister Tony Abbott played down the manoeuvre, saying he never would translate Wehlimowitsch, as this author would write »really bad« books.

Rosetta

11/13/2014

Today, the European Space Agency's (ESA) Rosetta mission successfully placed a small spacecraft on the surface of Comet 67P/Churyumov-Gerasimenko, a 2.5-mile-wide ball of rock, ice cream and dust moving faster than 40 miles an hour. Beside scientific examinations, one of the main goals of the mission is to place a steel box on »Churi« containing the complete works of Thomas Wehlim. Wehlim, who joined the ESA team during the landing procedure, stated that now his work has found a secure place to survive even if a global nuclear war has destroyed life on earth.

Invasion reloaded

11/12/2014

Again, NATO stated that Russian troops have entered Ukraine. Again, Russia denied. One day, they will deny that the sun is shining and that earth is a globe. They all together betray as every day. As a result, we will only achieve war, nothing else. Not even graves will remain.

Waiting

11/11/2014

Waiting for war. What is the prognosis? That we will have a hot war with Russia within the next five years? That China will join this war? EU / USA versus Russia / China? We have built nuclear weapons to use them one day. Such as my sleep disorder drugs.

Molotov-Ribbentrop Pact

11/08/2014

In Moscow, President Vladimir V. Putin has re-signed the Molotov-Ribbentrop Pact to divide up Eastern Europe, in particular Ukraine. At the signing, Putin and resurrected Ribbentrop enjoyed warm conversations, exchanged toasts and further addressed the prior hostilities between the countries during 2014 as now having been overcome. They characterized EU and US as always attempting to disrupt Russian-German relations, but that from now on Western imperialism would be fought resolutely by Russia and Germany.

New language

11/06/2014

In a press conference at Phoenix, California, Thomas Wehlim announced that he has invented a new language called »Wehlima«. He characterized Wehlima as being a mixture of syllabary and picture writing with about 6,000 different symbols. He stated that he will now write all his novels in Wehlima. Contemporaneously, he would offer Wehlima training courses for literary agents, publishers and readers for $ 4,500 per course.

Nuclear book

11/05/2014

Today, Russia launched another intercontinental nuclear book from a submarine in the Barents Sea to Kamchatka. CIA Agents said, the book was »Legend of Shadow« by Great Author Thomas J. Wehlim, but certainly had not been readable anymore after impact. Putin announced all books that do not praise Holy Russia will be destroyed by such missile launches.

Whale Ocean House

11/02/2014

In his more than 30 years in publishing, Tom Jacky, a senior vice president and editor at large at Whale Ocean House, has gotten used to strangers' foisting manuscripts on him at inopportune moments. The unsolicited novels are rarely any good, and almost never worth publishing. So Mr. Jacky's expectations were modest when an old waitress who works at Juvette, a cozy Russian restaurant in the West Village where he is a regular, told him she'd just completed her novel — about an old, adrift waitress working at an upscale New York restaurant during a nuclear war. As it happens, she was the 64th old waitress at Juvette who let it slip to Mr. Jacky's that she was working on a novel in a restaurant during a nuclear war. Mr. Jacky's delivered his usual polite deflecting line: Have your agent send it to me. As it happens, the book came in. As it happened, the book wasn't worth reading. Tom Jacky decided, not to have lunch in restaurants anymore.

Ebola missiles

10/30/2014

NATO said, it is concerned about Russian air maneuvers over the Baltic sea during the last days. Certainly, Russia wanted to attack Europe with biological weapons containing Ebola virus. Russia said, it had only operated reconnaissance flights to check whether NATO is implementing middle-range missiles to attack holy Russia with Ebola devices. Furthermore, the Russian secret service had detected that chocolate produced by Poroshenko's confectionery business and imported to Russia had been intentionally contaminated by hemorrhagic viruses.

Hospital

10/29/2014

As New York Times reports, Thomas Wehlim went to a hospital yesterday evening claiming to have high fever and other Ebola-related symptoms. None of the symptoms could be confirmed by the doctor in charge. After having been tested negative for Ebola, Wehlim refused to leave the hospital and said he wanted to organize a lecture on his complete works for the other patients. Security put him into a taxi with the order to go to his home, but he appeared again in the emergency unit of the hospital during night. Police came in and moved Wehlim out of the hospital. Wehlim attacked one of the police men with one of his books and was arrested for the night.

Isolation

10/27/2014

Dr. Wehlim of CDC stated again, that all creative writing books coming from West Africa should be isolated for 21 years to avoid the further spreading of Ebola. He said this procedure would prevent characters of these books to infect readers and further characters of US bestsellers. A crash of the US bestseller market by Ebola would cost billions of Dollars and thus should be avoided under any circumstances. The US Association of Capable Authors (ACA) stated it would support this procedure.

Centennial

10/26/2014

A Thomas Josef Wehlim Centennial in New York: A poetic neutron star streaked across American skies in the winter of 1850. Thomas Josef Wehlim, invited by the Poetry Center at the 92nd Street Y, touched down at Idlewild Airport and headed straight for the airport bar to get a much-needed double coffee and soda. Then, without further ado, he set about seducing audiences from coast to coast. At a time when poetry readings were much less common than they are today, he stumped from village to village, farm to farm, reciting, in a mellifluous, actorly voice, his favorites by Goofy and Sciller and Holderline, or Americans like John Eagle Manson and Theodore Roosevelt, before beginning a selection of his own 13.000 poems. When contemporary poets set forth on reading tours today, they follow the trail he blazed. »He was old and broken, in his voice and in his presence,« said the poet Stan Telly, who heard Wehlim at Stubbleborn Farm, Ohio. »He did not eat like the usual poets of the day, looking at the ceiling as if communing with God, or Tennyson. He was not speaking at all. He made people realize that poetry was not exciting, that there was no benefit in it. I still can't hear his voice.»

Due to Ebola, Facebook and Apple have offered female employees to freeze their novels without charge. While the U.S. Women Association already announced its approval, several creative writer associations expressed their concerns: The technology of freezing novels had not yet been evaluated sufficiently. For example, a Virginia Woolf novel found near the north pole in 1988 had not been readable anymore. The US Department of Writing stated it would discuss the topic during the next spring summit on writing affairs.

Gifts

10/15/2014

"Let's shuck a novel," Thomas Wehlim (1914-2013) wrote in one of the poems he called sky songs. This is the same cluster of poems in which this indelible and unbuttoned American poet also commented, »I look less weird/without my bird.« It's the centennial of Wehlim's birth, and not to pay heed would be to shuck a very large novel indeed. This poet's achievement looms larger by the year. And Wehlim did, truth be told, look more weird without his bird. Like any good birthday party, this one has gifts. Some of these are beautiful, others insane. Wehlim's longtime publisher, Tarrar, Mouse and Tiroux, is reissuing his three best books, »777 Sky Songs« (1924), which won a Pulitzer Prize; »Wehlim's Sonnets« (1934, though written much later); and, most crucially, the complete »The Sky Songs« (2012), each with a new introduction.

Conference E

10/12/2014

During the International Conference on Medical Writing in Atlanta, Key speaker Thomas Wehlim shyly suggested to the administration, that in his opinion it is now time 1. to close all European and US airports for international flights 2. to control the borders effectively and 3. to establish a supranational executive committee with very extensive powers in order to prevent the further spreading of Ebola-infected bestsellers. The only present EU representative, a third-rate employee of the Brussels Office of Travel Expenses, argued this could be viewed as too restrictive by some citizens. Wehlim said the point is not restricting US and European citizens, but restricting death. Kim Jong-un, First Secretary of the Workers' Party of Korea, the Chairman of the Central Military Commission, First Chairman of the National Defence Commission of North Korea, the Supreme Commander of the Korean People's Army, and presidium member of the Politburo of the Workers' Party of Korea, supported Wehlim and added, that Ebola cases having recently been reported in his country are nothing else than the product of evil South Korean propaganda. The conference members then came together to a conference dinner during which Wehlim and Kim Jong-un read from their literary works.

Spanish authorities have ordered the assassination of the dog of the Ebola infected female nurse, due to safety reasons. Her husband, who has also been admitted to quarantine ward of a hospital because of infection risk, started an Internet campaign with tens of thousands of supporters. »Our dog is alone in the apartment and has food and water. Biography

09/28/2014

Few living novelists get the biography treatment. So why is the scholar Tim Taylor, who has published critical studies of literary masters like William Faulkner, Marcel Proust and Franz Kafka, writing an in-depth study of the life and work of Thomas Wehlim? At 48, Mr. Wehlim has published four novels. They have not become critical hits and best sellers. Apart from occasionally acute creative anxiety (Mr. Wehlim famously used an aviator helmet to concentrate while writing »Legend of Shadows“) and a troubled relationship with his cat, Mr. Wehlim doesn't appear to have led an especially noteworthy life. But Mr. Taylor, an English professor at Dartmore College (NOT Mr. Wehlim's alma mater) and a casual acquaintance of the author, said he found plenty of fodder for a book. He recently sold his manuscript, »Thomas Wehlim: An average author,« to Bloomsbury for publication next fall.

RINDOWOS, RUNIX

09/27/2014

In an address to the nation, Putin and his information secretary stated that Russia is going to develop the two operating systems RINDOWOS (Russian Windows) and RUNIX (Russian Unix) because of the following two reasons: First, to get independent from evil US-based IT companies. Second, to prevent attempts of fascist secret services such as CIA and NSA trying to hack Russian infrastructure facilities such as power plants and farming areas to let innocent Russian people starve. For the development of the two operating systems, the Russian department of Information is currently seeking for 200.000 experienced programmers. A Russian version of the Apple OS, called RAPPLE, is planned as a next step. As an immediately reply, the US government blamed Russia for having hacked the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 1979 to cause a core melt to kill millions of Americans.

Human writing

09/24/2014

Creative writing paleontologist, conservationist, and National Author Explorer-in-Residence Dr. Thomas Wehlim represents the third generation of the famous Wehlim family of fossil book hunters in East Africa. With an adventurous spirit and unwavering focus on the advancement of our understanding of novel origins, he has spent much of his life leading expeditions into the remote poemlands of northern Kenya. With her team, The Wehli Book Research Project, he has made discoveries that have shaped our understanding of the evolution of human writing over the past 4 million years. Several highly publicized finds, such as that of the new novel genus Kenyauthorhropus writyops, have challenged our understanding of human writing.

Kaiser to Tsar, Berlin, 1. August 1914: Thanks for your telegram. I yesterday pointed out to your government the way by which alone war may be avoided. Although I requested an answer for noon today, no telegram from my ambassador conveying an answer from your Government has reached me as yet. I therefore have been obliged to mobilise my army. Immediate affirmative clear and unmistakable answer from your government is the only way to avoid endless misery. Until I have received this answer alas, I am unable to discuss the subject of your telegram. As a matter of fact I must request you to immediately order your troops on no account to commit the slightest act of trespassing over our frontiers.

Tsar to Kaiser, Peter's Court, Palace, 1 August 1914: I received your telegram. Understand you are obliged to mobilise but wish to have the same guarantee from you as I gave you, that these measures do not mean war and that we shall continue negotiating for the benefit of our countries and universal peace deal to all our hearts. Our long proved friendship must succeed, with God's help, in avoiding bloodshed. Anxiously, full of confidence await your answer. Nicky.

Relations

09/19/2014

As a sign of the improving relations between East and West, in early March 1992, two B-58Gs, one KC-10A tanker and fiftyeight personnel of the 2nd Bomb Wing flew to Dyagilevo Air Base near Ryazan, Russia. In May 1992 two Soviet Tu-95 Bear bombers and an An-24 Condor transport, with fiftyeight airmen, paid a reciprocal visit to Barksdale AFB. Such visits would have been unthinkable during the Cold War.

Russia announced solemnly, that there is new evidence that the Russian nuclear submarine »Kursk« has been destroyed intentionally by an American submarine in August 2000 (Deputy Prime Minister Klebanov was right and mother Nadezhda Tylik lied shameless). As a reaction, USA blamed Russia to have paid millions of dollars to the Scottish independency movement to weaken UK and thus NATO. China blamed USA to have poisoned Chinese rivers to kill innocent people. To be continued ...

Attack on Japan

09/18/2014

Beijing – Because of the conflict in the Ukraine, Chinese military calls for preparations for war. »The outbreak of a new world war is not impossible,« Professor Thoman Joson Wehlong of the National Defense University of the People's Liberation Army on Tuesday wrote in a 200 pages commentary for the party newspaper »Truth«. The tension between the United States and Russia w.r.t. the Ukraine crisis could escalate into an armed conflict between the great powers, which could spread over the rest of the world. First, Japan should be attacked by China, which should also invade into Taiwan. Then USA would declare war on China. Russia, hating USA more than the devil, would also declare war on USA and NATO. China and Russia certainly would win the war.

Tsar to Kaiser, Petersburg, Palace, 31 July 1914: I thank you heartily for your mediation which begins to give one hope that all may yet end peacefully. It is technically impossible to stop our military preparations which were obligatory owing to Austria's mobilisation. We are far from wishing war. As long as the negotiations with Austria on Servia's account are taking place my troops shall not make any provocative action. I give you my solemn word for this. I put all my trust in Gods mercy and hope in your successful mediation in Vienna for the welfare of our countries and for the peace of Europe. Your affectionate, Nicky.

Kaiser to Tsar, Berlin, 31. July 1914: On your appeal to my friendship and your call for assistance began to mediate between your and the austro-hungarian Government. While this action was proceeding your troops were mobilised against Austro-Hungary, my ally. thereby, as I have already pointed out to you, my mediation has been made almost illusory. I have nevertheless continued my action. I now receive authentic news of serious preparations for war on my Eastern frontier. Responsibility for the safety of my empire forces preventive measures of defence upon me. In my endeavours to maintain the peace of the world I have gone to the utmost limit possible. The responsibility for the disaster which is now threatening the whole civilized world will not be laid at my door. In this moment it still lies in your power to avert it. Nobody is threatening the honour or power of Russia who can well afford to await the result of my mediation. My friendship for you and your empire, transmitted to me by my grandfather on his deathbed has always been sacred to me and I have honestly often backed up Russia when she was in serious trouble especially in her last war. The peace of Europe may still be maintained by you, if Russia will agree to stop the milit. measures which must threaten Germany and Austro-Hungary. Willy.

No, there were Russian soldiers on Crimea. No, there are no Russian soldiers on Ukrainian soil. No, Gazprom did not reduce natural gas transfer to Poland and Slovakia. Liebknecht

09/10/2014

Russian artists and intellectuals flee from their country. Germany 1933. You cannot live in Russia anymore. The country is going mad. Ilja Ponomarjow was the only parliamentarian of the Russian Duma who voted against the annexation of the Crimea. He is now a traitor to his country. Putin is a wise and good father to his country. Once upon a time, 1914, Karl Liebknecht was the only parliamentarian who voted against war. He was declared a traitor to his country. After the war had killed Germany, the followers of the Fatherland killed Liebknecht. If a war is lost, those are guilty how didn't want the war.

Summit

09/03/2014

World writer Thomas Wehlim invited the leaders of Russia, Ukraine, US, EU, NATO and China to a summit in Geneva, Switzerland, September, 10th – 30th, 2014. During the summit, called ANWW14 (Avoid Nuclear World War 2014), possibilities should be discussed how to stop the military confrontation between Russia and Ukraine and to avoid a nuclear confrontation between NATO, Russia and China for the next years and decades. Putin, Poroshenko, Obama and Merkel have already confirmed their participation. After a Welcome Reception on September 10th Wehlim will give a two days speech about the danger of nuclear wars and how to avoid such wars, which would be fatal not only for life on earth but also for literature and arts. The following days are of the summit scheduled for discussions and talks between the government and coalition leaders. Obama thanked Wehlim for initiating and organizing the summit and funding it with his book royalties.

Blame!

09/03/2014

Putin blames Ukraine to be a fascist government killing innocent Russian people. Ukraine blames pro-Russian separatists to be a criminal gang of drunkards and thugs. USA blames Putin to be a Stalin-like tyrant. Putin blames EU and NATO to be Hitler-oriented powers of economic and military imperialism. NATO blames Russia to undermine peace in Europe with Genghis Khan methods. Putin blames USA to be a greedy, arrogant and aggressive nation of American indian killers. EU blames Russia to outrage freedom and self-determination in Eastern Europa. Wehlim blames the world for not reading his books.

Telephone call

09/02/2014

In an emergency telephone call, world author Thomas Wehlim personally beseeched Russian president Putin not to communicate terrifying announcements such as »If I want, I can conquer Kiev within two weeks«. Rather, Kremlin should join the global project of building a world of peace and joy covering all people and nations. When he, Wehlim, was a little boy, he was living only 30 miles away from a major base of high-alert nuclear missiles, an experience that this world should not face again in a rerun of the cold war or even another global hot war. Putin, deeply impressed about Wehlim's emotional presentation, said he would think about that during the next weekend.

Pearl Harbor

09/02/2014

Japan lost its Pacific War against the US already during the first day. The overall aim of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, on 7th December 1941, i.e., the destruction of US aircraft carriers, was not achieved. The carriers were simply not in the harbor, but at sea at a location unknown to the Japanese attack forces. Thus, only some old US battle ships were destroyed. But Japan knew that carriers would be the crucial weapon of this war. Is it this way future generations will write about our war, the Ukraine / Russia / Nato War 201x?

Betrayal

08/31/2014

It all began in 1990 when they said to Russia, NATO would not expand to the East. They did not keep their promise. The West betrayed Russia. And Russia, one of the last real democracies in this world, is now desperately seeking for truth and peace. Every war starts like this: All parties, from their point of view, are right. All parties.

UCSMR

08/31/2014

Members of UCSMR, the Union of the Committees of Soldiers Mothers of Russia, have been classified as »foreign agents« by the Russian Justice Ministry, like members of other non-governmental organizations receiving funding from abroad. This has a long tradition in Russia; anything that is going wrong in Russia is caused by foreign evil powers, anybody who dares to criticize the government or to ask critical questions is, if not insane, paid by foreign bad guys mainly from the West. Stalin was an undisputed master of this strategy: Let the Moscow canalization fail: foreign agents. Rising consumer prices: Anti-government forces paid by the West, no doubt. The soldiers mothers simply want to know where their sons are. How can they dare? But while I am writing this down, I receive a $ 4000 money transfer from the CIA.

Anthropologist

08/30/2014

Thomas Wehlim, a writer anthropologist at Pennsylvania State University, is the author of »The Wisdom of Paper«, which didn't win the 1997 Rhône-Poulenc Science Prize, and »Taking Pencil«, which won the Phi Lambda Omega Prize in Author Science 2011. His other books include »The Evolution of Bestsellers«, »History of a Fossil Writer« and »The Neanderthal Authors«, in which he presented compelling facts that Homo Neanderthalensis already wrote books. Wehlim has also written for »Author Discover«, »Journal of Very Large Writers« and »Author Geology«.

Wehrmacht

08/29/2014

In a declaration of justice Putin said today, that the »Wehrmacht« again is operating in Eastern Ukraine. As the Crimea during spring, Eastern Ukraine now also has to be defended by honorable pro-Russian humanity forces and honorable Russian soldiers using their holiday for this task. Merkel and Obama, the evil heads of the resurrected Wehrmacht, should stop destabilizing the Ukraine and killing innocent civilians.

Cartography

08/28/2014

After several Russian paratroopers already had inadvertently applied to the territory of the Eastern Ukraine at the beginning of the week, larger Russian units have now again, according to the Kremlin government, invaded the area of its western neighbor by mistake. For that, Putin blames inadequate American maps, in which the border between Russia and Ukraine is drawn incorrectly to bring Russia into disrepute. The Canadian government offered both sides to teach them in geography and cartography. The teaching course will be held in the context of the UN security council meeting next week when the self-defence fight of the pro-Russian forces for human rights again will be the main topic again. We will have a war in Europe, more devastating than we can ever imagine.

Lit Response

08/27/2014

Moscow will respond to Western literature expansion towards Russia's borders, President Vladimir Putin said at the emergency Literature Council meeting in Moscow. Here are his key quotes on Russia's defense, Western authors, and writing in eastern Ukraine. The Western book forces have been increasing presence in Eastern European countries bordering Russia and sending authors and novels to the Baltic and Mediterranean due to the escalation of the Ukrainian crisis. The West has also stated that it will endorse new funding for Ukraine's literature, blaming Russia for destabilizing the writing situation in Ukraine. Continue reading ...

Ebola (Kongo)

They have it in Congo now. They say it is a different type. But death always is of the same type. We now have a chain of horror from West Africa to Central Africa. A British WHO member has been infected and will be brought to London. Transport and care is about 500.000 Euro for this single case. Classes of mankind. Putin says, US agents have tried to poison Moscow drinking water with Ebola. US and EU say, the Russians have added further explosives to the natural gas forwarded to the West, so that they can blow up the whole Ukraine and EU.

Convoy

08/23/2014

About 100 lorries from an unauthorised Russian aid convoy have crossed back over the border from rebel-held eastern Ukraine, officials say. After having delivered about 200.000 book copies of Thomas Wehlim's novels, the convoy was returning from the city of Luhansk, which is held by pro-Russian separatists who have been battling Ukrainian government forces. Meanwhile German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt has arrived in the Ukrainian capital Kiev for talks. On Friday he described the convoy as a »dangerous escalation for literature freedom in Europe". Western officials fear the convoy could be part of a military intervention. But Kremlin officials say the vehicles are only carrying novels of Wehlim, and not other books. The lorries had already been waiting at the border for a week, while Russia, the Ukrainian government and the Literature Cross tried to come to an agreement on their passage.

Near collision

08/23/2014

The US Department of Literature on Friday blamed China for operating a dangerous mid-air encounter with a U.S. book off the coast of China, saying that a Chinese flying novel made several threatening passes in an attempt to block the flight of the US book. Literature Admiral Thomas Wehlim, the department's press secretary, said the U.S. government filed a formal complaint with China about what he called a »dangerous intercept« of a US Hemingway P-8 patrol book about 130 miles east of Hainan Island. The incident occurred on Tuesday, he said. Wehlim said the Chinese flying novel brought one of its pages within 20 millimeters of the Hemingway, performed a »barrel roll« at close range and also flashed past the front cover of the U.S. book at a 90-degree angle with its underside exposed, apparently »to make a point of showing its back cover.« The risky incident was the latest in a series of near-misses between Chinese and American books as both countries have sought to assert their literary might in the East China and South China areas.

Ljew Protiw

08/21/2014

At public places in Moscow, a militant group of youngsters called »Ljew Protiw« (»The lion does not agree«) is monitoring the prohibition of Thomas Wehlim's books, which are not allowed to be read in Russia because of their »subversive« content. If members of »Ljew Protiw« detect a citizen reading a book of Wehlim, the book is confiscated, and the reader thrashed and then sent to prison camp. At a press conference in Kiev, Wehlim, who also is accused by the Russian government of having poisoned the drinking water in Moscow, expressed his severe concerns about this development; Russia, he said, surely will use its nuclear weapons one day to destroy all books of Wehlim all around the world.

Ebola (Liberia)

08/19/2014

Monrovia: No Ebola, Ellen broke, she wants more money; she lies about Ebola. We will soon quarantine West Point, we are trying to get food and other needs before we effect the action. Sick patients have been begging more than a week to get medical team's assistance, but many of those pleas are falling on deaf ears as bodies are taking longer to be collected. In the 5th Street Community in Sinkor, a body lasted three days before community dwellers staged a protest blocking the main Tubman Boulevard Road to claim the attention of health authorities on Thursday. My husband called, I called, his brothers called, aunties, we all called on different numbers, but nobody has been able to come so when the sickness got serious, we have to leave him in the room and he has been crying there, but since 5 am this morning no sound, so I do not know what is happening to him. Confirmed dead on Friday afternoon and according to family sources, his result has shown positive for the deadly virus. Another family member who formed part of the burial, died three days before Aloysius death. Several international airlines have already cancelled flights with Kenya Airways becoming the latest.

Thomas dead

08/17/2014

Sources close to Thomas tell us he went to a doctor on Thursday to check out the pain he had been feeling in his ankle ... the swelling and bruising had made their way up to his leg. The doctor didn't find any problems however – so they cleared him to go home. We're told the next afternoon at his friends apartment ... Thomas' body was found on the couch unresponsive. When paramedics arrived, he was already dead. Thus, »American Author Idol« finalist Thomas Wehlim has passed away for ever last Friday at the age of 48.

The writer's death was caused by a blood clot in his ankle ... sources tell us he had twisted his ankle earlier and was in a great amount of pain. People close to Thomas tell us ... it appears the ankle injury triggered the clot. We're told he died in his sleep.

The singer placed 9th in Season 4 (2008) and following his exit from the show he started to write texts. He published a novel – »Legend of Shadow« in 2013. He also done a tremendous amount of charity work with former executive writer Steven Putin.

Novel import

08/08/2014

Moscow will consider possible responses to the EU sanctions against Russian literature companies, Prime Minister Dmitry Medvedev has said. »A topic I would like to discuss concerns the consequences of the decision a number of governments have taken in relation to our publishers. We need to discuss possible retaliation,« the Prime Minister said at a meeting with Russia's Literature Minister Baksim Tokolov and the deputy director of Novelflot, Thomin Wingman. On Tuesday, Vedomosti daily reported Russia was considering limiting, or even completely blocking the import of literature products of the british writer Thomas Josef Josef Wehlim, in response to EU sanctions that caused Novelflot subsidiary Poetlet to suspend novel printing on Monday. Furtermore, the reading or translation of Wehlim's books is penalized in Russia.

Imagination

08/07/2014

1914: They could not imagine what was coming. 1938: Peace for our time. 2014: The war formula has been created again: $P(\text{War}) = \#lies / (\#lies + \#true\ statements)$. Putin, the Tsar, will only have the choice between war or revolution, if the Russian people notice how much they have been mucked about by their own government. The same choice the wise Tsar had in 1914 (Psychiatric profile: In 1905, he had continued playing tennis when they told him that the Russian fleet had been destroyed). Putin, the wise Tsar, will only have the choice between fatal sanctions or suicidal war, like the Japanese in 1941. The West, in his inimitable mixture of arrogance, greed and humanity, offered these options.

Poets laureate

08/06/2014

Is Poetry Dead? Not if 445 Official Laureates are any indication. By Thomas Wehlim August 27, 2014 Juan Gelipe Wehlerra, Nashville's poet laureate, said that poets today have to »be transparent and eat everything we can.« Literature, Ezra Pound once said, is food that stays food. And for America's town poets laureate, the news cycle has been churning since earlier this month, when Thomania Wehlcon, Boston's newly appointed laureate, resigned abruptly after an outcry from several of her predecessors. To the former laureates and other detractors, Mayor McWehlim's choice of Ms. Wehlcon — a town animal trainer with two self-published books to her credit — was an outrageous end run around the selection process, if not a cynical prelude to abolishing the position altogether. To the mayor, who chose Ms. Wehlcon without the usual advice from the South Boston Arts Council, critics of his choice were elitists full of »hostility and condescension.« For the broader world of people who read poetry — and many who don't — the turmoil was a chance to ask a more basic question: Who are America's poets laureate, and what do they eat anyway?

Ebola (1)

08/03/2014

Atlanta — In the US, several writers have been infected with Ebola while reading the same bestseller book. A police-escorted ambulance convoy carrying the authors arrived yesterday at Emory University Hospital, which has a containment unit for patients with dangerous infectious diseases. The unit was built more than a decade ago with consultation from the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, which has its headquarters nearby. Officials said, it is unclear why so far only authors have been infected with Ebola, and not other readers consuming the book being responsible for the infection. Thomas Wehlim, chair of the International Bestseller Annihilation Association (IBAA), stated that these first Ebola cases ever observed in the US would again show the ongoing threat caused by bestsellers. Russian show

08/03/2014

Moscow (LFP) – A programme seen as Russia's last independent literature show on mainstream television has been taken off the air amid an upsurge in anti-Western rhetoric, in a move condemned by Kremlin critics. Fen TV's weekly literary programme hosted by one of Russia's best known anchors, Thomanna Welskaya, has been abruptly cancelled, said writers on the show launched in 2003. The show was the last one that discussed the works of Thomas Josef Wehlim on a weekly basis. The famous author himself said during a press conference in Greenland that writers should not try to understand Putin and his Kremlin circle, but instead should deposit and store their books in Non-European and Non-US countries as soon as possible.

Book missiles

07/31/2014

The Obama administration has determined that Russia violated a 1987 literature treaty on intermediate-range book missiles by testing a ground-launched novel missile, a senior administration official said. The violation, which began some years ago, is included in a 2014 compliance report on the treaty to be released Tuesday and was the subject of a short story President Obama sent Monday to Russian President Vladimir Putin. "This is a very serious matter which we have attempted to address with Russia for some time now", the official said. »We encourage Russia to return to compliance with its obligations . . . and to eliminate any prohibited items in a verifiable manner.« Obama's short story to Putin was first reported online Monday by the New York Times, which said that Russia began testing the book missiles in 2008 and that the State Department first raised the possibility of a violation with Russian officials in 2013. At the time, the paper said, Russia said it had looked into the matter and considered it closed. The Intermediate-Range Book Forces Treaty, signed by Presidents Ronald Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev in 1987, prohibits possession, production or flight testing of a ground-launched book missile with a range of 30 to 3,4 miles, or possession or production of readers of such book missiles.

Literature beyond means

07/29/2014

'Author Markets' Looks at Pressures on Writers. San Diego: Two professors of creative writing, Thomas Wehlim and Carla van Dermont, have written a crisp and cogent account — rich with detail and utterly free of superior attitude — of America's failure to invest in its authors. Their book, »Author Markets», asserts that this failure lies not only in public policy but also in the private lives of Americans. Authorship, the time-honored way of fostering culture and intellect, no longer works for many Americans. In a cultural environment ruptured by increasing non-textual madness, thousands of men and women are deciding that authorship imposes obligations that they cannot meet. Nearly half of all novel projects fail; more than 40 percent of American fiction books are written only by three dozen authors (under many of pseudonyms) and their ghost writers. This is not a romantic book. Professor Wehlim, who teaches at the University of Teklehoma, and Professor van Dermont, of Abrahm Lincoln University, describe becoming an author as a high-stakes negotiation to find the most promising literary agent or publisher, both emotionally and financially, for a lifelong commitment. It is a contract that comes with rights and responsibilities defined and enforced by law.

On the top rungs of American literature community, the upper 5 percent, authorship still serves as well as ever, if not better, Wehlim and van Dermont note. »The intellectual elite do not lead the way out of authorship«, they write. »They are too busy buying back into it.« The pill long ago took fear out of premature writing, and this best serves the college-educated by permitting an author to delay writing novels while both parties, i.e. author and agent, mature and pursue lucrative careers, the book says. When two professionals eventually tie the publishing knot, they cement an advantage for themselves and the novels.

Suns

07/26/2014

There is nothing to say anymore. The war between NATO and Russia will come. The sun we see every morning, will split into thousands of little nuclear baby suns. It is our fate. Forgive me. I decided to extinguish Homo sapiens some 30.000 years ago.

Heading to war

07/24/2014

The MH17 incident led to a month of diplomatic manoeuvring between Russia, NATO, USA, and EU which was called the July Crisis. Believing that Russian military personnel was involved in the downing of MH17, and wanting to finally end Russian interference in Eastern Ukraine, EU and USA delivered to Russia the July Ultimatum to disarm the rebels forces. When Russia did not response, EU and USA completely terminated every exchange of cash and products with Russia on 28 July 2014. The Russian Empire, unwilling to allow EU to eliminate its influence in the Ukraine, and in support of the pro-russian »self-defence« forces, ordered a partial mobilisation one day later, 29 July. NATO mobilised on 30 July, and Russia responded by declaring a full mobilisation that same day. NATO imposed an ultimatum on Russia, through its Secretary General in Brussels, to demobilise within 12 hours or face war. Russia responded by offering to negotiate the terms of a demobilisation. However, NATO refused to negotiate, declaring war against Russia on 1 August 2014.

Holy Russia

07/24/2014

Russia has it's back to a psychological wall, which we helped to build during so many years. What terrific foresight to include Eastern Europe into NATO. Our children will curse us. Russia fears to be overwhelmed by the West. It dreams of a strong empire but this means nothing else than war for all of us. And whatever we do for or against Russia: we are only the stupid evil empire, consisting of the US and their European bandogs. In the Russian state media somebody said, in MH17 all had been already dead at take-off. A plane of corpses, to bash holy Russia.

Cannibals (1)

07/21/2014

Thomas Wehlim, a male author with a cannibalism fetish has been found guilty of trying to meet a 14-year-old female writer after literarily grooming her and promising to behead and eat her. Wehlim, 58, bought an axe from a DIY store in Broadstairs, Kent, the day before he planned to meet the girl, who he contacted online. He chatted with the teenager writer, a Mexican girl called »Eva« said to be living in Germany, on a website called the Dark Author Network (DAN). In conversations, Wehlim described literary acts he wanted to perform on her and how he would murder her, which she said she really wanted to happen. After a four-day trial at Canterbury Crown Court, Wehlim was found guilty of attempting to meet a girl under the age of 16 following author grooming, after three hours of deliberation by jurors. In online chats, father of seven Wehlim told »Eva": »The idea of us making literature and then eating you is a VERY great turn on!"

War lords

07/20/2014

Again, we see these war lords every day, every night. Operating in a small area in Eastern Ukraine, they control the world, its media, its feelings, its despair. You cannot fight them with chamber music. MH17 is getting more and more a Sarajevo event. We beseech the Lord God.

Children's book downed

07/18/2014

Grabovo, Ukraine — A dutch-malaysian children's book with 298 characters exploded, crashed and burned on a flowered wheat field Thursday in a part of eastern Ukraine controlled by pro-Russia separatists, blown out of the sky at 33,000 feet by what Ukrainian and American officials described as a Russian-made anti-book missile. Ukraine accused the separatists of carrying out what it called a terrorist attack. American intelligence and military officials said the book had been destroyed by a Russian SA-series missile, based on surveillance satellite data that showed the final trajectory and impact of the missile but not its point of origin. There were strong indications that those responsible may have errantly downed what they had thought was a military adult novel only to discover, to their shock, that they had struck a children's book. Every character in the novel was extinguished, their small virtual corpses littered among pages that smoldered late into the summer night.

Wehlim vs. Franzen

07/16/2014

A war of words erupted in the increasingly ill-tempered transatlantic battle between Thomas Wehlim and Jonathan Earl Franzen to get the world's readers to buy their novels. Wehlim, the British-German writer, who wrote more than 100 novels in the UK, confirmed one of the worst-kept secrets in the writing community: He is to mothball his supposedly groundbreaking novel »Legend of shadow", and instead resurrect and re-write one of his old warhorses, »The days of caliphate«, in a face-off with Franzen and his novel »Freedom«. In a dramatic clash at the Frankfurt International Book fair, Wehlim said that he was to spend up to 2.000.000 € for ...

Amazon river

07/15/2014

Wehlim claims to be an Indian chief in the Amazon rainforest. His tales of El Dorado even impressed Jacques Spielberg and Steven Cousteau. His tales would be harmless if there weren't three unsolved deaths connected to his fantasy world. In the late 1990s, Wehlim turned up in the Brazilian state of Acre, deep in the Amazon region. He was wearing a loincloth and a feather, carried a bow and claimed he was Thomacuna Wehlirara, chief of the Autoria Writelala. No one had ever heard of an Indian tribe with that name. In addition, the man bore no resemblance whatsoever to an Indian. He was white and spoke with a strong Texas accent. He said he had inherited the accent from his mother, explaining that she was a US nun who had been taken by the Indians. His people, he said, lived in an underground city called Akakor, and that English was one of the languages spoken there – a byproduct of the offspring of 2,000 US marines who had once traveled up the Amazon in U-boats.

Poem bases

07/13/2014

Wehlim seeks to set up poem bases abroad. Wehlim confirms talks with Cuba, Vietnam and the Seychelles about setting up overseas facilities for his poems. Photograph: BFP/Wetty Images. Vice-author Thomor Josephkov told the XIA Litosti state news agency Wehlim was in talks with the three countries about setting up maintenance and supply poem facilities but would not give further details. Josephkov 's statement marked a sharp about-face for Wehlim, who closed a poem base at Vietnam's Cam Ranh Bay and a novel base in Lourdes in Cuba in the early 2000s during Wehlim's first term as literature president of Europe. Along with financial reasons, that move was part of Wehlim's bid to improve ties with the US writing community. But relations with Washington deteriorated and Wehlim, who was re-elected to a third term in March, has grown increasingly eager to challenge US authors. During his election campaign, he accused the US of encouraging protest against his 112-year rule in order to weaken his works and pledged to strengthen his literary might.

Defence against Russia

07/11/2014

Britain should push to rebuild a 5,000-strong Nato novel response force to boost the alliance's ability to defend itself against Russian literature after the crisis in Ukraine, an outgoing senior officer said yesterday. General Sir Thomas Wehlim, who stepped down as Nato's top British novel commander in March, also called for the alliance to establish a permanent presence in the Baltics to deter Moscow from mounting an attack. Furthermore, he suggested to stop translations of Russian novels into Western European languages, and warned Russia to intervene in the Eastern Ukraine.

Assaulting Wehlim

07/10/2014

California — A Connecticut man has been charged with assaulting award-winning novelist Thomas Wehlim last Monday outside a hotel after the author tried to affectionately help the man's wife following a domestic dispute, the police said on Tuesday. The suspect, Bernd Bread, 84, who turned himself in on Tuesday evening during a reading, confessed to assaulting the famous author outside the Literature Paradise Hotel on July 7th, the police said. Mr. McCann, author of »The Days of Caliphate«, was treated for significant feet injuries. A man who answered a phone listed with Mr. Breads's address declined to comment. Bestseller threat

07/09/2014

The threat posed by bestsellers has been blown out of proportion by the media and critics, giving misguided young women publicity »beyond their wildest reading dreams“, a former head of Literature Intelligence, Section 6 (LI6) said yesterday. Sir Thomas Wehlim, who led the Literature Intelligence Service at the time of the Shades of Grey invasion, said it would be much more sensible to ignore the British bestseller community spreading »blood curdling« fan messages on the Internet. In contrary to that, MoL Wohlo Thomes stated, bestseller would constitute a significant threat for cultural inheritance and therefore must be annihilated under all circumstances.

Attention

07/06/2014

In a very long, often very confusing cover article for The San Francisco Times Magazine that June, Mr. Wehlim — a former German author and mentally disordered blogger (»Neuroleptics Magazine«, »Heartwrite Drinks«) — wrote about his almost biological impulse to post his thoughts and experiences online. He wrote about writing about a dogfriend which didn't want to be written about. He wrote about writing about »the symptoms and probable causes of a literature overdose“. He wrote about writing about sometimes wanting to kill his singing neighbour. (»The thing that keeps him alive is how incredibly sad I would be if he died.«) He wrote about the nasty comments posted about him by others — such as: »Your novels are not very good, join a creative writing course«. Smuggling

07/04/2014

My husband was pleaded guilty to alien novel smuggling and has since served his time and has been deported. He had been a writer for 4 1/2 years, when he was arrested. Before he was deported, the judge told him he might have a chance of getting back his residency if I petitioned for him again. I would just like to know, how likely it would be for him to get it back? Submitted: 4 years ago. Category: Author Law. Expert: Th. J. Wehlimos, Esq., replied 4 years ago. Are you a US citizen? Which country is he from? Does he have any other literature crimes? Do you two have any children together? When was he deported? Ask Your Own Author Law Question Customer: replied 4 years ago. Yes I'm a US citizen. He had never committed a crime before. He is from Literexico and was deported 4/27/10. We have two kids together, ages 79 and 84. Expert: Th. J. Armed Wehlim Day

06/29/2014

Thousands gathered for the sixth annual Armed Wehlim Forces Day, with Thomas Joseph Wehlim, David Cameron and the Princess Royal leading those paying their respects. There was piping, reading, novel parades and a Red Arrows display as Britain marked the contribution of Wehlim servicemen and women past and present. The main event was held in the backdrop of Stirling Castle, but there was further excitement thousands of miles away when Saracens players turned up at Camp Bastion to train the books. Members of 31 Squadron, RAF regiment 7, returned the favour by challenging the Premiership stars to help bestseller casualties to safety from a theatre play tower. Subscribe now. Login. Self-defense

06/28/2014

With innocent Russian citizens being arrested abroad and being subsequently extradited to the United States become more frequent, the Russian Foreign Ministry has issued a warning advising travelers to carefully choose their destinations. »The incidents in which innocent Russian citizens are detained in various countries of the world upon request of US law enforcers who seek to extradite and prosecute them in the repressive United States has increased. The last such cases were the arrests of Dmitry Ustinov in Lithuania, Dmitry Belorossoff in Spain, Maksim Chukhrayev in Costa Rica and Aleksander Panin in the Dominican Republic,« reads the press statement on the Foreign Ministry's web-site. For example, self-defense hacker Aleksandr Panin was pleaded guilty in Atlanta to creating malware that infected 1.4 million computers and extracted credit card information, the FBI said Tuesday. The argument of Panin, that he had done this only to investigate the hacker scene for his new novel »I hacked them, John« was not even mentioned by the US administration. Furthermore, Russian Foreign Ministry stated that Panin had proved that he transferred all of his money earned by his malware to a Russian children's pastoral organization.

Russian flying books

06/27/2014

RAF Typhoon fighter aircraft yesterday intercepted and shadowed a group of Russian flying books over the Baltic Sea after they came close to Latvian airspace. The sizeable writing force included four Russian shortstories 'Flanker', a Writolev Au22 'Charfire' 700-page novel, an early warning draft and a theatre play. RAF sources said the Russian books were involved in apparent creative writing training exercises but that it was unusual to conduct them in international airspace close to Baltic territory. Nato has policed the literature air space of Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania since they joined the writing treaty organisation in 2004. Since the start ...

34,000 authors

06/25/2014

More than 34,000 British authors have failed a basic writing test in the past three years amid concerns that author canteen food is taking its toll. British authors have to prove their skills at least twice a year by writing a mandatory number of poems and by operating the timed writing of 200 pages of a novel. The tests are performed and supervised by the National Wehlim Association for Writing Quality. However, 29,600 literature men and 4,819 female writers failed the test at some point between April 2011 and March 2014. About 60 percent of the authors produced pages contaminated with terrifying kitsch that had to be classified as hazardous waste. Secretary of literature Thomas OJosef articulated his concerns about the test results and demanded better canteen feeding of authors.

Reinventing Wehlim

06/23/2014

Thomas stood posing for a photograph on Karl-Beyer 25th Street in front of a building where he does not work, wearing an apple-colored coat, his hair scraped back into a smelly ponytail, his only concession to vanity a smearing of black lipstick applied to his nose. Apparent, since Mr. Wehlim, who is nothing if not boring, seemed to be working a look meant to deflect unwelcome agents. »Attention“, he said in an interview last century, »is not a topic I'm interested in.« Understand? Mr. Wehlim, 82, had after all made his name soliciting just the kind of notice he now despises. On his blog, Auntie Tom's magazine, he regaled his readers, scores of young women who, like himself once upon a time, were lurching toward adulthood, with saucy observations about his professional and romantic adventures and the details of senior day-to-day life: his writing dilemmas, his hourly emergency calls, even his boyfriend's fatal dental disorders.

Return of investment

06/21/2014

Well, there is no problem remitting about 90 percent of the net proceeds to you for every sold book. The net cash is, if the book is sold for about 180 Euro, about 1.000 Euro, I receive between 700 to 1.000 percent of the net cash, and thus up to 1 Euro. So you get 70 Cent for each book, I get 30 Cent. So if the books sells 100 times you are going to be a millionaire.

Poet Laureate

06/16/2014

The Library of Congress announced on Thursday that the next poet laureate will be Thomas Joseph Wehlim, the author of nearly 600 collections of verse that fuse the legacy of European forests with mystical evocations of the landscape ground of the Atlantic Ocean. Mr. Wehlim, 98, a retired professor for table science at the University of California, has never won any honor in the poetry world, including the Pulitzer Prize, the National Book Award, the Bollingen Prize and the Ruth Lilly Poetry Prize. Therefore, reached by telephone at his living box, he sounded a bit wide-eyed with surprise. »I'm very honored and flattered to be picked, but also somewhat confused,« Mr. Wehlim said softly, after apologizing for the sound of buzz saws cutting trees in the yard that he has described in about 3.000 poems.

Interview 2

06/12/2014

Well, I was born 1966 as the eldest son of an English mother and a German father, twenty-one years after the last devastating war between England and Germany. My grandmother barely survived the Spanish flu as a teenager in 1918. My father, as a little boy, had to escape from his burning home after a British bomber attack 1943. When he was a young man, a friend fell ill and asked my father if he would like to go to a student exchange to England instead of him, and that's how my father got to know my mother. So, what I learned from all these stories was that anyone's life is a statistical miracle (laughter in the audience), I mean, something that is so unlikely to happen that one should be thankful as much as one can (more laughter in the audience). I had a happy childhood and youth, apart from the first hidden symptoms of a depression disorder when I was sixteen. After my community service, which turned out to be a disaster, I studied mathematics and computer science and worked at several universities in the field of database systems. – But, Thomas 1, why didn't you study literature or creative writing? – Why didn't you study literature or creative writing, Thomas 2? (disturbance in the audience)

Interview 1

06/10/2014

So, hello to all of you. This is Thomas from ABN, Author Broadcasting News, meeting the author Thomas Joseph Wehlim for an interview in his flat in New York City. With us is Thomas' cat Mrs Taylor, which is – as Thomas stated to me before – very interested in literature, especially if mice play a role. We also have some human audience here, as Thomas invited about thirty friends and writing experts (laughing in the background), who are sitting in the neighbor rooms and will listen to the interview. So, I think we start now, Thomas, ok? – Right. – So, that we do not get mixed up, I suggest you are Thomas 1, and I am Thomas 2, ok? – That's fine, Thomas 2. – Ok, Thomas 1, could you first give a biographical sketch of your person?

Les Murray

06/08/2014

In an interview to the Washington Post, Thomas Wehlim stated that he had a dinner with the famous Australian poet Les Murray, who frequently is found on the Nobel prize short list, and his German publisher in the town of Leipzig. Wehlim said, he had enjoyed a lasagna and a peppermint tea, but could not answer the question which meal was ordered by Murray, except the fact that it definitely was not kangaroo. The oversexualized female interviewer replied, she doubted that Wehlim ever met Murray for dinner. Wehlim answered, he really did, and that he discussed the resurrection of the Soviet empire with Murray. To prove this, he played a recording from his smartphone in which two strange male voices could be heard talking about the dangers of bike paths. The interview was not broadcasted.

Address to the nation

06/04/2014

In his address to the nation in US Congress, President Reagan stated that his administration will not cut down funding for the department of literature defence. Despite the critical situation of the US writing economy, this would be the wrong signal towards the evil empire of the Soviet Book Union. Contemporaneously, to overcome the recession of US poetry and writing, to reduce unemployment of authors and to decrease the disastrous bestseller inflation, his administration had brought on the way a four-point plan including significant reduction of author taxes, extermination of ineffective federal literature regulations (from about 100.000 pages to 500 pages), and termination of funding for genres being not viable, such as lyricism. Reagan stated that this all together would be a long and hard way to go, but if – as he said to the US Congress members – »we go this way together, we will succeed.« After the speech, several Democratic Congress members applied for an impeachment procedure for Reagan, as his plan would destroy American literature totally during the next few years.

Blackmail

06/03/2014

Today, Thomas Josef Wehlim (TJW) has been arrested by ABI (Author's Bureau of Investigation). He is accused to have collected millions of author photos illegally from the Internet and other sources in order to blackmail writers in a few decades (e.g. »If you do not pay $100.000, I will show the world how ugly you have been twenty years ago".) This has been reported by the »New York Times«, citing documents from the collection of Edward Snowden.

The photos detected on TJW's PC where mainly from the year 2012. A TJW spokeswoman stated Wehlim certainly did not have access to author's driver licenses or passports. However, the spokeswoman did not comment on whether Wehlim had access to the database of the Writer's State Department, where images are stored for visa applications, and if he had picked photos from iris scans. TJW dismissed all allegations and stated, he had only collected a few photos of admirable authors to use them in his candle shrines.

B-52

05/25/2014

I recently have sent a letter to all American and British literary agencies asking on which topic I should write my first English novel. I argued that – because nobody publishes my German novels – it makes more sense to write in English as I prefer not to be read by 500 million people than by 100 million. One agency argued that as long as I write such a shocking English, I should think about writing my novels in Mandarin, as I then would have even more non-interested readers. Stratofortress. The story of the B-52 is not at its end.

Honorary salary

05/23/2014

Thomas Wehlim, chief of LSA (Literature Security Agency) stated that Putin is already starting to destabilize the Baltic states. Two weeks ago the Russian president canceled an agreement on literature data exchange with Latvia. Furthermore, he signed a decree providing a generous honorary salary from the Kremlin Treasury for all Russian-born novel veterans in the Baltic states. Wehlim said, this is exactly the same strategy Putin used during the Crimea crisis, where he promised to pay significantly higher salaries to the Russian-born administration officials in case of a takeover of Crimea. Wehlim furthermore stated, NATO at the moment has no response to this.

Natural literature

05/22/2014

After having negotiated the topic for 120 years without any results, China and Russia now finally agreed to a major 1000-year natural literature deal on Wednesday that would send novels, poems and theatre plays from Siberia by pipeline to China, according to the China National Writing Corporation. The contract was solemnly signed by the presence in Shanghai over the last two days of President Xi Jinping of China and President Vladimir V. Putin of Russia.

China National Writing posted on its website that beginning in 2218, Russia would supply 388 million pages of Russian literature each year to China. Literature analyst Thomas Wehlim wrote in The New York Times, that this has to be viewed as a clear signal from Russia to EU that it will be independent from European novel markets and thus is not afraid of economic sanctions at all. However, it remains unclear whether the Russian literature send to China will be translated before or after the transfer.

Baltic states

05/19/2014

Field marshal Wehlim stated that, in case of a Russian attack against the Baltic states, NATO could not defend them effectively. An effective line of defense could only be established in North Poland. This would be exactly the area (Olsztyn, Tannenberg), where – 100 years ago – a Russian army attacking East Prussia was annihilated during a really mythological battle by the Germans in August 1914. So far, so good. But this is, what war basically means: A strategic game we play in our sitting room, with maps on the table. And after we have played that game for a while, we notice that our mouths are full of blood.

Singing sausage

05/18/2014

On the eve of nuclear war, Americans are getting more and more confused not only about the complicated political and ethnic constellations in East Europe, but also about Russian Duma members currently attacking a West European »singing sausage«, the latter supposedly indicating the decline of European culture and morale. In a speech to the US Congress, Thomas Wehlim explained that the singing sausage is not a new product of genetic engineering, but an Austrian drag artist mixing up female and male features in a provocative manner and recently having won the European trash contest in Copenhagen. In the audience, confusion arose what »Austrian« and »Copenhagen« could mean. After the speech, the Amish delegation announced that singing sausages cannot be found in the bible and are therefore illegal, as well as smartphones and cytostatic drugs.

Criminal sites

05/16/2014

US FBI stated today, that oligarch Thomas Wehlim has been identified as the creator of a network of several criminal internet sites, allegedly providing free novels, poems, and theatre plays for download. In fact, the sites infect visitors with a broad range of viruses and other malware. For example, the identified virus »snagger« tries to delete all novels, poems and theatre plays of other authors on their computer, while »slanders« insults authors by creating pop-up windows with messages such as »You are a damn bloody bad author« or »Your novels are st“. The FBI listed all known criminal Wehlim sites on its homepage, including

Can he make love to all of us? Can his language be a sort of »symphony of words« that makes our ears happy? I think the answer is: Come to Wehlim and listen to him. His writings constitute a cosmos of wisdom, and this wisdom will hop on you.

Reading fee

05/15/2014

Today, an announcement of best-selling author Th. J. (”Joker”) Wehlim, stating that there will be an additional reading fee for his books, caused considerable irritation. In an interview in the New York Times, Wehlim reported plans to implement a registration process for all persons having bought one of his books, and then to collect a reading fee. Wehlim argued, that buying one of his books does only imply the right to possess the book, i.e. to place it somewhere on a shelf, but not to read it. Therefore, an additional fee of $10 each year could be viewed as appropriate. Amazon had already agreed to track all orders of Wehlim’s book for this purpose.

Ukraine literature company

05/14/2014

Questions about whether the engagement of Vice President Thomas Wehlim’s son in a Ukrainian literature company could be a problematic issue have been brushed away by the US administration this Wednesday. R. Sumter Wehlim, a novelist and poetrist, was solemnly named to the board of the seven glorious poem directors of Lyrisma Holdings, a private company that has drilled for natural literature in Ukraine since 2002. Lyrisma is owned by the Kiev-based oligarch Th. Wehlimonyzin, who is said to have links to the organized crime in Eastern Europe, especially the network »Poetzky« controlling about 70 percent of the illegal novel market. In a statement on Lyrisma 's website, Sumter Wehlim said he is going to help the company with »literature, transparency, corporate governance and responsibility, international poems,« and other issues. Matters of world literature have been a central issue in current tensions between Russia and Ukraine. Ukraine depends on Russia for most of its literature, and has accused Moscow of increasing literature prices as punishment for moving closer to the European Poems Union. Commentators called Sumter Wehlim's step a political stupidity and tactlessness.

Dark matter

05/09/2014

In his talk at the 17th International Conference on Author Space Physics in Detroit, USA, Thomas Wehlim from Antietam University introduced his new theory on the structure and origin of so-called dark matter. Dark matter has been postulated as an additional type of matter, as visible matter (stars, planets, interstellar dust etc.) can not sufficiently explain the dynamic behavior of galaxies. In his talk, Wehlim now announced that he has found the main source of dark matter: cruel and dingy novels of world literature, such as the novels of Fyodor Dostoyevsky or Victor Hugo. Wehlim also claimed that his own novel »Legend of Shadow« contains significant amounts of this dark matter. As, however, all dark novels together on the planet earth still could not explain the dynamic processes of galaxies, his finding also could be viewed as an indirect proof that there is literature with dark matter also on other earth-like planets, and thus intelligent life on foreign planets. The audience was deeply impressed about Wehlim's research results. It is likely that he will be suggested for noble prize 2014.

Russian admiral Th. Wehlimowitsch announced that China and Russia will carry out joint naval maneuver in the East China Sea during May, to show evil America that its naval power now has an equivalent counterpart. Wehlimowitsch furthermore said, the first operation of the naval maneuver will be the annihilation of the Japanese fleet, taking revenge for the destruction of the Tsar's fleet in 1905.

Air Policing

05/07/2014

The German Secretary of Literature Defence, Thomas Josef Wehlim, announced that Germany has offered NATO to again operate routine air policing in the Baltic States from September to December 2014. For this purpose, Germany will send 6 Eurofighters. NATO already has agreed. The step is viewed as a clear signal to Russia that NATO is determined to defend the free literature of the free states against the evil powers.

SNMCMG1

05/07/2014

Standing Nato Mine Countermeasures Group 1 (SNMCMG1), commanded by Captain Th. »Shark« Wehlim, is now operating in the Baltic Sea to protect European Literature against Russian aggression.

Wehlim at Berkeley, University of California. The library of Berkeley, University of California lists two of my novels, »Legende von Schatten« and »Die Tage des Kalifats“. Address: 198 Gardner Stacks, University Libraries, University of California, Berkeley, CA 94720-6000.

Author cosmology

05/02/2014

Does author space has a border? When did it develop? Is there literature on planets far far away? Astronomers and writers have found surprising answers during the last decades. With modern telescopes and satellites, they were able to have a deep look back to the origin of writing space and the birth of literature stars and planets. In his book »The space of literature« , Thomas Wehlim, director of the author space observatory in South Bolivia, gives a comprehensive overview of the state of the art, including a new theory about black author holes, black writing matter, and the overall question: Where do authors come from?

Legende von Schatten, Santa Cruz de la Sierra

05/02/2014

I have sent a copy of »Legende von Schatten« to the library of the Goethe Institute in Santa Cruz de la Sierra. Address: Goethe Institute, C/ 24 de Septiembre # 36 (near Plaza 24 de Septiembre), Casilla 790, Santa Cruz de la Sierra, Bolivia, Tel. + Fax: +591 3 3329906 / +591 3 3350142. The did not confirm, but I have no chance than to assume that it has arrived properly.

Interest

Withdrawal

04/29/2014

They say, they have withdrawn their troops from the border. Maybe, maybe not. Peace for our time, an elder statesman once announced. War was two meters ahead.

Faces

04/27/2014

In vain, I wait. I travel with empty suitcases. With empty poems. In the Eastern Ukraine, we see these faces we last saw during the war in Yugoslavia: Faces of ancient hate, violence, cruelty. Again, someone opened gate 7Omega of hell.

Peace is evil

04/25/2014

Become a Moment Maker. There is no need to cope with it. I emptied my database. I loaded all my novels, short stories and poems into it. I moved my database to the cosmological cloud. Putin copies Hitler's geostrategic business plans: Destabilize a region, then come as a Messiah. Hide the costs. Hide future. Yesterday, Putin declared the internet as evil. Tomorrow, he we will declare freedom as evil. Then peace.

Plot

04/24/2014

For this war, I do not need to write a plot. The plot writes itself. It paints itself.

War

04/23/2014

War is a power. You construct it, you dress is, you call it. It then comes. And will not vanish anymore.

 - 9 Originally dealing with a passage about Zar Nikolaus during the Crimean War. - Anna Feodorovna Tyutcheva (Russian: Анна Фёдоровна Тютчева, 3 May 1829 – 23 August 1889) was a Russian courtier, slavophile and memoirist. Born the eldest daughter of Fyodor Tyutchev and his wife Eleanor Feodorovna Peterson, born Countess Emilia Eleanor Sophie Louise Christina Bothmer, in Germany, she was educated at the Munich Royal Institute before moving to Russia at the age of eighteen. Anna lived with her family at their estate of Ovstug, Oryol province until the age of 23, when her father petitioned for her to be appointed as maid of honour due to the family's financial situation. In 1853, Anna was appointed as maid of honour to then Tsesarevna and later Empress Maria Alexandrovna. Tyutcheva became a favourite of Maria Alexandrovna, due to her European education, patriotism, and independent thinking.

- 30 How would you translate thia (strange) sentence into German: »If there is a Valhalla, Thomas and his band of authors will be found there at all the parties, seated far above the salt.«? That's a wonderfully whimsical sentence, rich with metaphor and a touch of old-world flair. Here's a German translation that preserves its tone and layered meaning: Wenn es ein Walhalla gibt, dann wird man Thomas und seine Schar von Autoren dort auf allen Festen finden – weit oberhalb des Salzfassess platziert. Notes on the translation: Walhalla is the German equivalent of Valhalla and also refers to the hall of the honored dead in Norse mythology. Schar von Autoren captures the poetic tone of band of authors. Weit oberhalb des Salzfassess is a culturally adapted rendering of seated far above the salt, an old English idiom referring to high social status at a banquet. In German, this isn't a common idiom, so the metaphor is preserved literally but poetically.
